The Early English Text Society was started by Dr. Furnivall in 1864 for the purpose of bringing the mass of Old English Literature within the reach of the ordinary student, and of wiping away the reproach under which England had long rested, of having felt little interest in the monuments of her early language and life.

On the starting of the Society, so many Texts of importance were at once taken in hand by its Editors, that it became necessary in 1867 to open, besides the Original Series with which the Society began, an Extra Series which should be mainly devoted to fresh editions of all that is most valuable in printed MSS. and Caxton's and other black-letter books, though first editions of MSS. will not be excluded when the convenience of issuing completed Texts demands their inclusion in the Extra Series.

During the thirty-four years of the Society's existence, it has produced, with whatever shortcomings, an amount of good solid work for which all students of our Language, and some of our Literature, must be grateful, and which has rendered possible the beginnings (at least) of proper Histories and Dictionaries of that Language and Literature, and has illustrated the thoughts, the life, the manners and customs of our forefathers and foremothers.

But the Society's experience has shown the very small number of those inheritors of the speech of Cynewulf, Chaucer, and Shakspere, who care two guineas a year for the records of that speech. 'Let the dead past bury its dead' is still the cry of Great Britain and her Colonies, and of America, in the matter of language. The Society has never had money enough to produce the Texts that could easily have been got ready for it; and many Editors are now anxious to send to press the work they have prepared. The necessity has therefore arisen for trying whether more Texts can be got out by the plan of issuing them in advance of the current year, so that those Members who like to pay for them by advance Subscriptions, can do so, while those who prefer to wait for the year for which the volumes are markt, can do so too. To such waiters, the plan will be no injury, but a gain, as every year's Texts will then be ready on the New Year's Day on which the Subscription for them is paid.

The success of this plan will depend on the support it receives from Members, as it is obvious that the Society's printers must be paid half or two-thirds of their bill for a Text within a few months of its production. Appeal is therefore made to all Members who can spare advance Subscriptions, to pay them as soon as they get notice that the Texts for any future year are ready. In 1892, the Texts for 1893 were issued; in 1893, those for 1894 and 1895; those for 1896-8 in 1896.

The Subscription to the Society, which constitutes membership, is £1 1*s.* a year [and £1 1*s.* additional for the EXTRA SERIES], due in advance on the 1st of JANUARY, and should be paid either to the Society's Account at the Head Office of the Union Bank of London, Princes Street, London, E.C., or by Cheque, Postal Order, or Money-Order to the Hon. Secretary, W. A. DALZIEL, Esq., 67, Victoria Rd., Finsbury Park, London, N., and crost 'Union Bank of London.' (United-States Subscribers must pay for postage 1*s.* 4*d.* a year extra for the Original Series, and 1*s.* a year for the Extra Series.) The Society's Texts are also sold separately at the prices put after them in the Lists.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Towneley Plays were printed for the first time by the Surtees Society in 1836, with an introduction which is variously assigned to the Society's secretary, James Raine, and to J. Hunter. The text of the plays as printed in this Surtees edition is, on the whole, very creditably accurate, and is certainly far more free from serious blunders than that of the so-called 'Coventry' Plays, edited by Halliwell-Phillipps for the Shakespeare Society, or even than that of the Chester Plays, as edited by Thomas Wright. It was not, however, a transcript with which students of the present day could be content in the case of a unique manuscript, the ultimate destination of which is still, unhappily, uncertain. Under Dr. Furnivall's superintendence a new transcript was, therefore, made by Mr. George England, who, by the great kindness and liberality of Mr. Quaritch, the present owner of the manuscript, after the book had been placed at his disposal for some weeks at the British Museum, was allowed the use of it a second time at 15 Piccadilly to correct his proofs by the original.

To the text thus produced Dr. Furnivall himself added notes of the metres, and at his request the present writer supplied the usual sidenotes, an interesting and pleasant task in the case of a work of so great variety and literary value. Dr. Furnivall's further commands for the supply of an Introduction were far less agreeable. The Towneley Plays present many problems, more especially as to their language, which deserve to be dealt with by some learned professor, or at any rate by an editor of really wide reading and experience. The learned professor, however, could not be obtained. The difficulty of procuring an introducer threatened to postpone indefinitely the appearance of the new text (a consideration all the more serious since the Surtees edition has long been difficult to procure); and as texts are far more important than introductions, it seemed better to be content to draw attention to a few points of interest rather than further to delay publication.

Short as is the preface to the Surtees edition, it contains much

Digitized by Google

that is of real value, as being written by a local antiquary to whom the history and topography of the district to which the plays are assigned were thoroughly familiar. I cannot, therefore, make a better beginning than by quoting the most essential passages of what was written in 1836, since it has not yet been superseded :—

"The Manuscript Volume in which these Mysteries have been preserved formed part of the library at Towneley Hall, in Lancashire, collected by the family of Towneley; a family which, in the two last centuries, produced several remarkable men, through whom it becomes connected with the arts, with literature, and with science. The library was dispersed in two sales by auction, at Evans' Rooms, in Pall Mall, the first in 1814, when there were seven days' sale; the second in 1815, when the sale lasted ten days."

"This manuscript, as well as the famous Towneley Homer, was in the first sale. It was bought by John Louis Goldsmid, Esq. From his possession it very soon passed to Mr. North, but before 1822 it had returned to the family in whose library it had for so many years found protection."

"By what means the Towneley family became possessed of it, or at what period is not known. There is nothing known with certainty respecting any previous ownership. When, however, the catalogue of the Towneley books and manuscripts was prepared for the sale in 1814, Mr. Douce was requested to write a short notice, for insertion in it. In this notice, after assigning the composition of the Mysteries to the reign of Henry VI. or Edward IV.,[1] he says of the volume itself, that it is supposed to have formerly 'belonged to the Abbey of Widkirk, near Wakefield, in the County of York.'"[2]

[1] There is a passage in the Iudicium which may assist in determining the period at which it was written. Tutivillus, in describing a fashionable female, tells his brother demons "she is hornyd like a kowe" (p. 312 [Surtees; p. 375, l. 267 in present edition]). He appears to allude to the same description of head dress which Stowe thus records: "1388, King Richard (the second) married Anne, daughter of Veselaus, King of Bohem. In her dayes, noble women used high attire on their heads, piked like hornes, with long trained gownes."—Surtees Note.

[2] After returning into the possession of the Towneley family, as narrated above, the Plays were again sold, with the rest of the Towneley MSS., at Sotheby's, on June 27, 28, 1883. The description of the lot was as follows:

202. TOWNELEY MYSTERIES. A most valuable collection of early English Mysteries, supposed to have been written at Woodkirk in the Cell there of Augustinian or Black Canons, for the Amusement

Digitized by Google

"This supposition, however, he appears to have subsequently considered as not worthy of much regard; for when Mr. Peregrine Edward Towneley, in 1822, printed, from this manuscript, the Iudicium, as his contribution to the Roxburgh Club, an introduction was written by Mr. Douce, in which he says that the volume is 'supposed to have belonged to the Abbey of Whalley,' and to have passed at the dissolution into the library of the neighbouring family of Towneley."

"On what foundation either of these suppositions rests we are not informed. The first, however, is that which has been most generally accepted, and the three principal collections of Mysteries now known have been usually quoted or referred to as those of Chester, Coventry, and Widkirk."

"In the absence of precise information, we may assume that the supposition of its having formerly belonged to 'the Abbey of Widkirk' was the Towneley tradition respecting it; and previously to any investigation it may be assumed, that if we are to trace the possession of such a volume as this in a period before the Reformation, next perhaps to the archives of some guild or other corporation in one of the cities or towns of England, we may expect to find it in the possession of some Conventual society. The question of that early possession is, in fact, the question of the composition of these Mysteries, as to the place and people. We shall now endeavour to determine it."

"The supposition that this book belonged 'to the Abbey of Widkirk, near Wakefield,' has upon it remarkably the characteristics of a genuine tradition. There is no distinct enunciation of the fact which the tradition proposes to exhibit, and yet out of the words of the supposition we may decisively and easily extract what the fact in it originally was. There is no place called Widkirk in the and Edification of Persons attending these Pageants. Manuscript on Vellum, written circa 1388, in a bold hand, with initial Letters ornamented with the Pen, having the speeches separated by lines of red Ink, olive morocco extra, gold-tooling, tooled leather joints and gilt edges, by C. Lewis, back broken. SAEC. XIV.

The lot was knocked down to Mr. Quaritch, in whose possession the manuscript has ever since remained. The date assigned to the plays by the cataloguer is clearly derived from the Surtees foot-note on the woman's head-gear satirized by Tutivillus; for a discussion of this, see p. xxiv. Whether the date given to the Plays is right or wrong, that assigned to the MS. is certainly three-quarters of a century too early.

neighbourhood of Wakefield, and neither there nor in any part of England was there ever an Abbey of Widkirk. But there is a place called Woodkirk in that neighbourhood, and at Woodkirk there was a cell of Augustinian or Black Canons, a dependence on the great house of St. Oswald, at Nostel. Whatever weight there may be attached to the supposition or tradition respecting the original possession, must, therefore, be given to the claim of this Cell of Canons at Woodkirk."

"Woodkirk is about four miles to the north of Wakefield. A small religious community was established there in the first half century after the Conquest, by the Earls Warren, to whom the great Lordship of Wakefield belonged, and they were placed in subjection to the house of Nostel. King Henry I. granted to the Canons of Nostel, a charter, for two fairs, to be held at Woodkirk, one at the Feast of the Assumption, the other at the Feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Mary. This grant was confirmed by King Stephen. These fairs, in a rural district, continued to attract a concourse of people to the time of the Reformation. In the Valor of King Henry VIII. the profit of the tolls and stallage was returned at £13 6*s.* 8*d.*, which was more than one-fourth of the yearly revenue of the house. The buildings in which the few Canons resided have gradually disappeared. Some portions of the Cloisters were remaining not long ago. The Church still exists, on a retired and elevated site, and remains of large reservoirs for the Canons' fish in the vale below are still very conspicuous. (Loidis and Elmete, p. 240.)"

The writer of the Introduction inserts here a few paragraphs of no great value, pointing out resemblances between the language of the plays and the dialect spoken in his own day in the West Riding of Yorkshire. We may take advantage of his pause to note, that Professor Skeat, in a letter to the Athenæum of December 2, 1893, proved decisively that the difficulty as to the place called Widkirk, of whose existence the writer of the preface could find no trace, is only an instance of a variation of spelling, Widkirk being merely an older form of Woodkirk, and one which still survives in the mouths of the country people (cp. the parallel forms Wydeville and Woodville, for the name of the Queen of King Edward IV.).

After the philological remarks the Introduction proceeds :—

"Perhaps the supposition in the Towneley family, on whatever it may have been founded, and the striking resemblance which there is between the language of several of these pieces and the language of the same class of society as it may still be heard on the hills and in the plains of Yorkshire, may be sufficient to render it at least a point of probability that the composition of these Mysteries, and the original possession of this volume, are to be attributed to the Canons of Woodkirk; or that the possession is to be traced to them, and the composition, perhaps, to some one of the Canons in the far larger fraternity at Nostel. But the manuscript itself contains that which connects it with Wakefield; and there are topographical allusions in one of the pieces, the Secunda Pastorum, which belong to the country near Wakefield and Woodkirk."

Digitized by Google

"Thus, at the beginning of the first is written in a large hand 'Wakefelde' and 'Berkers,' the meaning of which seems to be, that on some occasion this Mystery was represented at the town of Wakefield by the company or fellowship of the Barkers or Tanners. To the second is prefixed 'Glover Pag . . .' without the word Wakefield. The imperfect word is 'Pagina,' which appears to have been used as the Latin term for these kinds of exhibitions or pageants. The meaning appears to be that this was exhibited by the Glovers. At the head of the third, however, we find 'Wakefield' again, without the name of any trade. These are the only notices of the kind, except that at the head of the 'Peregrini,' the words 'Fyssher Pagent'[1] occur."[2]

"It is in the Secunda Pastorum, which is truly described by Mr. Collier as 'the most singular piece in the whole collection,' that the local allusions occur which tend so strongly to corroborate the claim of Woodkirk and its Canons to the production of these Mysteries. Intended in the first instance for the edification or the amusement of the persons in the immediate vicinity of the places in which these Pageants were to be exhibited, we may expect to find that there will be, when the subject fairly admitted of it, attempts to arrest their attention, and to interest their minds, by such a simple artifice as the introduction of the names of places with which they were familiar. Thus, in the Chester Mysteries, the River Conway is spoken of, and

[1] Mr. England notes that these words are in a later hand.—A. W. P.

Boughton is mentioned, a kind of suburb to Chester. In the Secunda Pastorum.

Secundus Pastor. Who shuld do us that skorne? that were a fowlle spott.
Primus Pastor. Some shrewe.
I have soght with my doges
All Horbery shroges
And of XV hoges
Fond I bot oone ewe.

"Horbury is the name of a village about two or three miles south-west from Wakefield. Shroges or Scroggs is a northern term applied to any piece of rough uninclosed ground more or less covered with low brushwood."

"The other local allusion is less decisive than this. When the two Shepherds appoint to meet, the place which they appoint is 'the crokyd thorne.' Now, though it cannot, perhaps, be shown that there was any place or tree then precisely so denominated, yet it can be shown that, at no great distance from Horbury, there was at that time a remarkable thorn tree which was known by the name of the Shepherd's Thorn. It stood in Mapplewell, near the borders of the two manors of Notton and Darton. A jury in the 20th of Edward IV., on a question between James Strangeways of Harlsey, and the Prior of Bretton, found that the Shepherd's Thorn 'was in Darton'; and in the time of Charles I., one John Webster of Kexborough, then aged 77, deposed that the inhabitants of Mapplewell and Darton had been accustomed to turn their sheep on the moor at all times, and that it extended southward to a place called 'The Shepherd's Thorn,' where a thorn tree stood. There must be here more than an accidental coincidence."

Since the publication of the Surtees Society edition of the Towneley Plays in 1836, all the three other great cycles of English Miracle Plays have been printed, the so-called 'Coventry' cycle in 1841, the Chester in 1843, and the York Plays, admirably edited by Miss Toulmin Smith, in 1885. The publication of this last cycle revealed the fact that five of the York Plays were based, in whole or in part, on the same originals as five of the Towneley. The importance of this discovery for the study of Miracle Plays and of the conditions under which they were produced, is hardly to be over-estimated. There is no reason to believe that it is by a mere chance, some peculiarly malicious freak of the arch-enemy Time, that, as far as I am aware, in no single case are there two early copies extant of any miracle play. Human nature, we may presume, was much the same in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries as in our own, and the ordinary author, when he had written a poem or a chronicle, no doubt did everything in his power to multiply copies of it, since every fresh copy would increase his chance of obtaining the patronage or preferment which constituted the rewards of authorship in those days. But in the case of plays we can easily see that a wholly different motive would come into action. With the highly doubtful exception of the Chester cycle, not a single Miracle Play has the name of any author connected with it. The author's personality is wholly lost in that of the actors and their paymasters; and in the absence of any law of copyright or custom as to 'acting rights,' it was to the interest of these jealously to guard their book of the words, lest the popularity of their entertainment should suffer from unauthorized rivalry. Since many of the players probably could not read, even the multiplication of 'actors' parts' would be very limited, and fresh copies would only be made when the plays underwent revision. The apparent exception to this theory, the five copies extant of the Chester cycle, really only confirm it, for all of these were made between 1590 and 1607, and must owe their existence to the desire of literary antiquaries either simply for their preservation or, more probably, for their revival, at a time when miracle plays were almost gone out of fashion.

For the reason thus hazarded, opportunities for the study of the genesis of any given cycle of plays are extremely small. We know that a fragment of the old poem of the Harrowing of Hell, beginning, 'Harde gatys haue I gon,' is found imbedded in the 'Coventry' Play of the Resurrection, and, thanks once more to the industry of Miss Toulmin Smith, in the Brome 'Common-Place Book' we can now study a version of the Sacrifice of Isaac closely similar to that in the Chester cycle. But the relations of the five plays in the York and Towneley cycles are much more interesting and important than these, and it will be worth while to examine them with some minuteness.

The first of these five plays is that called by Miss Smith, 'the Departure of the Israelites from Egypt,' No. XI. in the York Cycle,[1] acted by the 'Hosiers,' No. VIII. in the Towneley Cycle, where it is called Pharao, and where also the sidenote 'Litsters Pagonn' informs us that it is one of the plays acted by the Craft-Gilds of Wakefield.

In comparing the two texts, the first point we notice is, that while the York Play consists of 408[1] lines, divided with unbroken regularity into 34 twelve-line stanzas, the metrical scheme of the Towneley Play is far less orderly. At the outset, indeed, it is evident that the Wakefield reviser mistook the metre, for by the addition of a quatrain of mere surplusage, he has turned the first 12-line stanza into two octetts. After seven long stanzas (divided in this text into octetts and quatrains, 3—16), we find similar additions in ll. 113—117 and 127—133, turning two 12-line stanzas into four octetts. Everything then proceeds regularly till we come to Towneley stanza 49, when we find a line—

—missing after l. 308.

Again in stanza 55 the two lines—

Lorde, was they wente than walde it sese,
So shuld we save vs and oure seede

—are omitted after l. 340.

In stanzas 57, 58, ll. 355—359 appear in the Towneley MS. as—

Primus Miles. A, my lord!
Pharao. hagh!
ijus Miles. Grete pestilence is comyn;
It is like ful long to last.
Pharao. In the dwilys name!
then is oure pride ouer past.

—in place of the regular York text (ll. 344—348)— i Egip. My lorde, grete pestelence Is like ful lange to last.

Rex. Owe! come that in oure presence,
Than is oure pride al past.

Lastly, we find that the Towneley text has added, or more probably retained, twelve lines at the end of the play which do not appear in the York edition.

If now we turn our attention to single lines, we shall find numerous instances in which the Towneley text exhibits an unmetrical corruption of the York. Here are a few—

[1] Numbered by Miss Smith as 406, but the last couplet is really a quatrain, and might with advantage have been so printed.

On the other hand, T. 106—

—is plainly better than Y. 102—

And the leues last ay in like grene

—and T. 216, 217—

—both for their sense and the purity of the rime to 'kyng' are better than Y. 203, 204—

Lastly we may take a pair of lines—

My lord, bot if this menye may remeve (T. 270)
Lord, whills ve [sic] with this menyhe meve (Y. 277)

—in which we may reasonably suspect that both texts are corrupt for[m] of some such original as—

My lord, bot if this menye meve.

The inevitable conclusion from these notes is, that the Towneley text of Pharao is a corrupted and edited version of the York play of 'The Hoseers' in a slightly purer form than we have it at present. I think we may also say that the majority of the corruptions in the Towneley text are of the kind which would most naturally arise in oral transmission, rather than from the blunders of a scribe.

Turning now to the second play in which the two cycles partly agree, The Play of the Doctors (Towneley XVIII.; York XXII., played by the 'Sporiers and Loriners'), we find that the Towneley text, which lacks the opening speech of 'Primus Magister,' begins in its present form with twelve quatrains which are quite different from the York version, and then follows closely the York twelve-line stanzas to the end, only interrupting them to substitute a longer exposition of the Ten Commandments, for which again quatrains are used. In some instances, as before, the Towneley text is better than the York, but we cannot doubt that the nearly homogeneous[1] York play represents the original on which the Towneley playwright incorporated his variations in a different metre.

A comparison of the third pair of plays—the York play of the Sadilleres (No. XXXVII.) and Towneley No. XXV.—representing the Extraccio Animarum or Harrowing of Hell, yields still more striking results. The York play, as usual quite regular, consists of 34 twelve-line stanzas, and it is clear that the Towneley play-wright had these in his mind all the way through, though sometimes, perhaps from failure of memory on the part of his informants, he can do no more than imbed a few York lines into new stanzas of his own, while elsewhere he makes intentional additions.

Summarizing the result of these changes, we find that the first twenty-four lines of Towneley reproduce ten from York; then we have York stanzas 4—10 with interpolations between 4 and 5, 8 and 9, and the omission of the last quatrain of 5. Stanzas 11 and 12 are represented by ll. 115—147, but only nine lines are preserved. Stanzas 13—15 are intact; stanza 16 is docked of its first quatrain; then we have an interpolation of twelve lines; then the first quatrain of 17, the second and third being expanded into twelve lines. Stanzas 18—28 are only interrupted by an interpolation (ll. 314—322) between 25 and 26. In 29 there is a substitution of a new third quatrain for four lines in the octett, the effect being so good that we may doubt whether in this case we have not really a preservation of an older text. Then come stanzas 30 and 31, and eight lines of 32, and with two substituted quatrains the Towneley play reaches its rather abrupt end.

In the fourth pair of plays, treating of 'The Resurrection' (York XXXVIII. 'The Carpenteres': Towneley XXVI.), the resemblance begins four lines earlier than Miss Toulmin Smith has noted, T. 41—44 answering to Y. 31, 32, 35, 36, while the 'rybaldys' of T. 42 is a better reading than the York 'rebelles.' In the preceding speech of Pilate we may note how the Towneley adaptor altered the York metre by lengthening the last line of the first four stanzas from two beats to three. We find the same difference in the added stanzas 9—11 (ll. 51—73), while five (or rather seven) lines tacked on to the last of these are outside the metrical scheme altogether. Stanzas 12 and 13 have half their lines as in York and half new. Stanzas 14—22, though with many corruptions, reproduce York 11—22. Stanza 23 is added; 24 (which should have been printed as in four lines) agrees with York 20, omitting the two opening lines; 25, save in its third line, is the same as York 21. In stanza 26 some of the York phrases are retained, but every line has been changed, and the bad rimes 'emang' and 'stand' show the work of a botcher. After this, with various corruptions, too numerous to mention, stanzas 27—35 reproduce York 23—31, but there is nothing in the York play to answer to ll. 214—333 (stanzas 36—55). The first ten of these 120 lines continue the talk of the soldiers, the rest is made up of the monologue of the risen Christ. The metre continues regular; with a few exceptions, the origin of which can easily be seen, the last line of each stanza remains quadrisyllabic, instead of being lengthened as in the added stanzas at the beginning of the play, and I think there can be no doubt that this speech of Christ once formed part of the York Cycle, but was subsequently omitted. Similar speeches occur in the 'Coventry' and Chester cycles, and in the last-named there are some positive resemblances which, in case they have not been noticed before, I set forth in a footnote.[1]

It will be noticed that this play falls naturally into three parts, of which Christ's monologue is the centre; and it is much easier to believe that in some process of amalgamating or dividing the different parts, this speech was omitted from the York manuscript, than that so important a feature in the plays was not represented in the cycle.

After l. 333 in Towneley, etc., agreement between the two cycles is resumed, and continues, with the usual verbal variations, to l. 561, the agreement of the stanzas being as follows—

Towneley.		York.	Towneley.		York.
56—66	=	32—42	88 partly	=	67
67	=	parts of 43, 44	89	=	68
68—85	=	45—62	90—93	=	70—73
86, 87	=	64, 65

Stanzas 63, 66 and 69 of York are unrepresented. L. 562 in Towneley is extra metrum, and cuts short the rather wearisome talk of Pilate which lasts in the York play for another eighteen lines. The scene between Christ and S. Mary Magdalene, which follows in the Towneley cycle, forms a separate play (No. XXXIX.) in the York, and there are no textual resemblances. It will be noticed that of the first eight of the eleven stanzas into which it is divided, every one has a different metre—a sure sign, I think, of the hasty work rendered necessary by an incident which could not be omitted having to be tacked on to a different play.

The case of the last of the five parallel texts, that of the play of the Last Judgment (Towneley XXX. Judicium; York XLVIII. acted by the 'Merceres'), is again very striking and interesting. The Towneley play, unfortunately, lacks some lines (the speech of 'Primus Malus') at the beginning, and the first sixteen lines which have been preserved to us, written in two different metres, are additions to the York text. The next three stanzas, with the exception of the last half of the fourth, are founded on York stanzas 19—21, then we have an inserted speech by 'Quartus Malus' (32 lines), then two more York stanzas, then the broad comedy of the Demons (stanzas 16—48, ll. 89—384), which takes the place of a short passage in York (ll. 185—228), the greater part of which is occupied by the speeches of Christ and the Apostles. After l. 385 the borrowings begin again, and for the whole of the Judgment-scene proper (Towneley, st. 49—67, ll. 386—531 = York, st. 30—47, ll. 229—372), the regular 8-line stanzas of the York dramatist are only interrupted by a single insertion of four lines (st. 65). But between the final dooming of the damned and the thanksgiving of the saved (l. 612—620), the Towneley play-wright inserts a long passage in which the fiends gloat over their victims, and this is all his own. Where the last stanza was taken from we cannot say. It is quite different from the York text, and bears more resemblance to the Towneley ending of the Extraccio Animarum (p. 305).

The foregoing conspectus of the points of agreement and disagreement between the Towneley and York texts of these five plays has probably been found almost as tedious to read as it certainly was to compile. But it was worth while to work it out in full, since the most cursory perusal of it must suffice to show that, in the circumstances under which the borrowings took place, it was practically impossible for a play to pass from one cycle to another without showing signs of the process in marked disturbances of metre and frequent corruptions both of sense and rhyme. It follows from this that wherever we find a play (not merely a fragment) the metre of which is uniform, or is obviously varied only in correspondence with the character of the speakers, while at the same time the rhymes are regular and the text good, in the absence of positive evidence to the contrary we are not only entitled, but bound, to assume that the play was composed for the place and the cycle to which it now belongs. A play full of obvious corruptions need not be a borrowed play, because corruptions may have arisen in many other ways; but a play which is creditably free from corruptions can hardly by any possibility have been borrowed.

Now if we apply this canon to the Towneley Plays, it will enable us to set some limit to the amount of imported work which we can safely recognize as existing in the cycle as it has come down to us. Long before the publication of the York Plays, the composite character of the Towneley was recognized by its first editor, though the reasons he assigned were less happy than his surmise itself,[1] and later writers have not failed to enlarge on the point. It thus becomes interesting to see how much of the cycle we can claim on sure evidence as composed especially for it. It is no bad beginning to be able to say at once, at least one-fourth, and this the fourth which contains the finest and most original work. The evidence for this is irresistible. We find the Wakefield or Woodkirk editor interpolating two broadly humorous scenes, the one containing 297 lines, the other 81, on the impressive York play of the Judgment. These scenes are written in a complex metre, a 9-line stanza riming aaaa bcccb, with central rimes in the first four lines (I should prefer to write it $\frac{aaaa}{bbbb}cdddc$), and we find this same metre used with admirable regularity throughout five long plays, viz.—

III.	Processus Noe cum filiis	558 lines
XII.	Prima Pastorum	502 (2 lines lost)
XIII.	Secunda Pastorum [1]	754 (2 lines lost)
XIV.	Magnus Herodes	513
XXI.	Coliphizacio	450

—or, including the two passages in the Judicium, in no less than 3155 lines, occupying in this edition almost exactly 100 pages out of 396. If any one will read these plays together, I think he cannot fail to feel that they are all the work of the same writer, and that this writer deserves to be ranked—if only we knew his name!—at least as high as Langland, and as an exponent of a rather boisterous kind of humour had no equal in his own day. We may also be sure that the two other plays, Flagellacio (No. XXII.) and Processus Talentorum (No. XXIV.), contain about the same proportion of his work as does the Judicium. They are closely akin to the Coliphizacio, and contain the one 24, the other 8 of his favourite stanzas.

For one other play which it is very tempting to assign to the same hand, the Mactacio Abel (No. II.), we lack the evidence of identity of metre; in fact, the frequent changes from one metrical form to another would make us suspect that we had here an instance of editing, if it were not quite impossible to isolate from the present text any underlying original. But the extraordinary boldness of the play, and the character of its humour, make it difficult to dissociate it from the work of the author of the Shepherds' Plays, and I cannot doubt that this also, at least in part, must be added to his credit.

When the work of this man of real genius has been eliminated, the search for another Wakefield, or Woodkirk, author becomes distinctly less interesting. It will be worth while, however, now to pass the whole cycle in review, adding what notes we can to each play, especially as to their metres.

[1] This play is further stamped as especially composed for the Wakefield district by the allusion to 'Horbury' noted above, p. xiv.

the Processus Prophetarum (No. VII.; it should of course change places with the Pharaoh, No. VIII.), the Caesar Augustus (No. IX.) and Salutation (No. XI.), written throughout in this stanza, which is also employed for parts of the plays of the Purification (No. XVII.), Processus Crucis (No. XXIII.), and S. Thomas of India (XXVIII.).

As to the two fragments (IV. and V.) the late Professor Ten-Brink wrote[1]—

"About a generation—but hardly much more—separates this oldest extant English drama [i. e. the Harrowing of Hell, 'composed shortly after the middle of the thirteenth century'] from the next. The play of Jacob and Esau, as we take the liberty of calling it, appears to have been composed not far from the mouth of the Humber, and probably to the north of the dialect line. The influence of the East Midlands is seen in the choice of subject, which was not popular on the earlier stage elsewhere, and the manner of treatment also reminds us of the districts and the century which produced the poems of Genesis and Exodus."

"In Jacob and Esau the dramatic art is still of a low standard; the situations are not made much use of; the characteristics show little depth or originality. The poet is full of reverence for his subject, and dramatizes faithfully what seems to him its most important traits, without putting to it much of his own originality," etc.

In his Appendix (vol. III. p. 274), Prof. Ten-Brink supported this view of the play with the following note—

"This play has been handed down in the Towneley Collection: unfortunately it is mutilated at the beginning, and also divided into two parts: Isaac and Jacob. However, it originally formed, and, in fact, still forms, one drama, which was produced independently without regard to any cycle of mysteries, and indeed earlier than most of the others, probably than all the other parts of the cycle in which it was subsequently incorporated. All this can easily be proved by means now at the disposal of philology, but this is not the place for entering into the subject. Less certain is the local origin of the piece. The assumption that few of the rhyming words have been altered in their transmission could, for instance, allow of the supposition that the drama might have been produced in the north of the East-Midland territory, rather than in the southern districts of Northumbria, a supposition which would coincide very well with many other peculiarities of the work."

I have quoted these passages from Prof. Ten-Brink in full, because the opinion of the writer who has produced the only really good history of our early literature, is a thousand times more important than my own. But my difficulties in accepting his theory in its entirety are both numerous and great. The Harrowing of Hell itself seems to me—as it has seemed to my betters before me—rather a dramatic poem than a Miracle Play properly so called, and I cannot conceive on what occasion, or by whom, an isolated play on Jacob and Esau could come to be acted in the vernacular. In a cycle, the presence of a play on Abraham might easily suggest a continuation dealing with his immediate descendants, and its simpler and more archaic form might be partly accounted for by the nature of its subject. I should prefer, also, to attribute differences of dialect to the removal from one district to another of a play-writing monk, rather than to the acceptance in one district of a play which had been composed for another many years before. It is obvious, however, that these two fragments do belong to a period, whether prae-cyclic or cyclic, at which the narrative and didactic interest of the representation was uppermost, and before the constantly increasing importation of external attractions had produced a distaste for the simpler and more exclusively religious form of drama. We know from Chaucer's allusions, as well as from the evidence of the York plays, that by the last quarter of the fourteenth century Noah and his quarrelsome wife and the ranting Herods and Pilates were already stock characters, and we may thus well believe that the cycle 'of matter from the beginning of the world' in its simplest form, must have been in existence during the first half of that century. The fact that this play has only come to us in fragments, is probably good evidence that it was considered antiquated at the time our manuscript was written, and that only a few speeches from it were used.

I must confess, however, that I cannot find anything either in the style or the language of these fragments which need compel us to separate them from the couplets in the play of the Creation and the Annunciation; and I incline strongly to believe that in these plays, and the others which I have mentioned as written wholly or partly in the $aa^4b^3cc^4b^3$ stanza, we possess part of an original didactic cycle, of much the same tone as the Chester Plays, on to which other plays, mostly written in a more popular style, have been tacked from time to time. In any case I do not think it can be doubted that the four plays, VII., IX., X., and XI., are the work of the same writer, and the rest seem to me to go with them.

The plays of the Magi (XIV.) and of the Flight into Egypt (XV.) are marked off from this group by their much greater use of alliteration, and seem to me—though my opinion on questions of dialect is worth very little—to have been written by an author of somewhat different speech. The Abraham and John the Baptist again are in a totally different metre, and may belong to the period when the York plays were being incorporated into the cycle. As regards these York plays, enough has already been said; but it is worth noting that the predominant metre of the Conspiracio (XX[a].) is the same as that of three out of the five plays connected with York (the Pharaoh, Doctor, and Extraccio Animarum), and may possibly be based on a lost alternative to the extant York play on this subject. A similar guess may be hazarded as to the play of the Peregrini (XXVII.), the metre of which is the same as that of the Resurrectio (XXVI., York XXXVIII.), while the obvious corruptions and interpolations of the text may well lead us to doubt its being indigenous. The fragment of the Suspencio Iude, printed at the end of the cycle, but which would naturally come immediately before the Resurrectio, is in the same metre, and subject to the same hypothesis.

As regards the work of the one real genius of the Towneley cycle, the author of the two plays of the Shepherds, and of the others written in the same metre, the converse of the arguments of which we admitted the force as regards the Isaac and the Jacob, will naturally lead us to assign to them as late a date as possible.

As noted by the Surtees editor, the allusion in the Judicium to the head-gear which could make a woman look 'horned like a cow,' enables us to be sure that this play-wright was a younger contemporary of Chaucer. We must not, indeed, like the cataloguer of the auction-room, argue that because Stow writes that in the days of Anne of Bohemia 'noble women used high attire on their heads, piked like hornes,' therefore these plays may be assigned approximately to the date of her arrival in England. I imagine that in those days as in these the fashions in the Yorkshire countryside were apt to be a little behind those of London; the piked head-gear is found in manuscripts as late as about 1420 (e. g. Harl. 2897, f. 188[b], and Harl. 4431, f. 2, kindly pointed out to me by Sir E. M. Thompson),[1] and the other allusions of these plays, e. g. the reference to tennis (Sec. Past. 736), the frequent and rather learned talk about music (Sec. Past. 186—89, 656—60, Judicium 537, 538), and the general talk of Shepherds and Devils about the state of the country [1]—all agree very well with the early years of the fifteenth century. In a writer so full of allusions, the absence of any reference to fighting tends, I think, to show that the plays were not written during the war with France, and thus everything seems to point to the reign of Henry IV. as the most likely date of their composition. The date of our text is probably about half a century later, but the example of the York Plays shows us that in its own habitat the text of a play could be preserved in tolerable purity for a longer period than this. In the direction of popular treatment it was impossible for any editor, however much disposed towards tinkering, to think he could improve on the play-wright of the 9-line stanzas, while it is reasonable to presume that the hold of these plays on the Yorkshire audience was sufficiently strong to resist the intrusion of didactics.

As regards the only plays not yet mentioned in the survey, the Capcio (XX[b].), Processus Talentorum (XXIV.), Ascension (XXIX[b].) and Lazarus, there has been so much editing and interpolating, and the consequent mixture of metres is so great, that it is difficult to arrive at any clear conclusion about them.[2] But, subject to such corrections as the survey of the dialect now being undertaken by Dr. Matthews may suggest, I think we may fairly regard this Towneley cycle as built up in at least three distinct stages. In the first of these we find the simple religious tone which we naturally assign to the beginning of the cyclical religious drama, the majority of them being written in one of the favourite metres of the fourteenth-century romances which were already going out of fashion in Chaucer's day.[3] In the second

[1] Note especially the allusions to 'maintenance' in Let. Past. l. 35, and the claim of Tutivillus to be a 'master lollar' in Jud. 213.

[2] The Lazarus, for instance, seems to be built up in three layers, the last of them the grim passage on death being strikingly in the style of some of the 9-line stanzas.

[3] A curious reminiscence of these romances is preserved in stanza 26 of the Processus Prophetarum:

Now haue I songen you a fytt;
loke in mynd that ye haue it,
I rede with my myght;
He that maide vs with his wytt,
Sheld vs all from hell pytt,
And graunt us heuen lyght stage we have the introduction by some playwright, who brought the knowledge of them from elsewhere, of at least five—possibly seven or eight—of the plays which were acted at York, and the composition of some others in the same style. In the third stage a writer of genuine dramatic power, whose humour was unchecked by any respect for conventionality, wrote, especially for this cycle, the plays in the 9-line stanza which form its backbone, and added here and there to others. Taken together, the three stages probably cover something like half a century, ending about 1410, though subsequent editors may have tinkered here and there, as editors will, and much allowance must be made for continual corruption by the actors.

It may be as well to note here that whatever weight we may be disposed to attach to the tradition that the cycle belonged to the Woodkirk monks and was acted at Woodkirk Fair, it is impossible to believe that the plays noted in the MS. as connected with Wakefield form in any way a group by themselves. The Barkers' play of the Creation, however much edited, belongs in its origin to our first stage; the Pharaoh, played by the Wakefield Litsters, but based on York XI., to our second, to which also I should assign the Peregrini played by the Fishers, written in the metre of the York Resurrectio. Lastly, the Noah, against which Wakefield is written, is in the 9-line stanza of the Shepherds' Plays, and the Glovers' play of Abel, whether re-written by the same author or not, is, in its present form, certainly late work. With the exception of the Fishers, we might say, without much exaggeration, that all the three crafts named, Dyers, Tanners, and Glovers, had some connection with the sheep, their hides and wool, which were probably the chief commodities sold at the Woodkirk fair,[1] and so might have taken a special interest in any pageant likely to bring customers to it. But we are bound to remember that the connection with Woodkirk is a mere tradition, and that it is quite possible that the whole cycle belongs to Wakefield, which is the only place with which it is authoritatively connected.

To bring literary criticism to bear on a cycle built up, even approximately, in the manner which I have suggested, is no easy

[1] If the Fishers, as at York, were allied with the Mariners, they too might be dragged in as concerned with the export trade. If they were Fishers, 'purs et simples,' one is tempted to say that they may have lent a hand at play-acting for the lack of sufficient employment in an inland town!

task. The plays were not written for our reading, but for the edification and amusement of the uncritical audience of their own day; and we can certainly say of them that, whatever effect the playwright aimed at, he almost always attained. Of the simply devotional plays the Annunciation seems to me the finest. The whole of this play, indeed, is full of tenderness; and there are touches in it in which Rossetti, if he knew it, must have delighted. The reconciliation between Joseph and the Blessed Virgin is delightful; and the passage in which Joseph describes his enforced marriage is really poetically written. One verse is especially quotable:

> Whan I all thus had wed hir thare,
> We and my madyns home can fare,
> That kyngys daughters were;
> All wroght thay sylk to find them on,
> Marie wroght purpyll, the oder none
> bot othere colers sere.

If this touch had been entirely of the dramatist's own invention he must, indeed, have been Rossetti's spiritual forbear; but it is needless to say that it comes from the apocryphal gospel of Mary, though he deserves all credit for bringing together two widely separated verses.[1]

The plays which I have put into my second group are on the whole very dull. The dramatist of the Abraham could not fail to attain to some pathos in the treatment of the scene between Isaac and his father; but though he avoids the mistake of the York playwright who represented Isaac as a man of thirty, his handling of the scene is distinctly inferior to that of the Brome Play and the Chester cycle. The general characteristic, indeed, of the group is, that the playwright plods perseveringly through his subject, but never rises above the level of the honest journeyman.

Between the dull work and the abounding humour and constant

[1] Chap. vi. 7: "But the Virgin of the Lord, Mary, with seven other virgins of the same age, who had been appointed to attend her by the priest, returned to her parents' house in Galilee;" and Chap. iv. 1—4: "And it came to pass, in a council of the priests it was said, 'Let us make a new veil for the temple of the Lord.' And the high-priest said, 'Call together to me seven undefiled virgins of the tribe of David.' And the servants went and brought them unto the temple of the Lord; and the high-priest said unto them, 'Cast lots before me now, who of you shall spin the golden thread, who the blue, who the scarlet, who the fine linen, and who the true purple.' Then the high-priest knew Mary, that she was of the tribe of David; and he called her, and the true purple fell to her lot to spin, and she went away to her own house." allusiveness of the author of the plays in the 9-line stanza, the distance can only be measured by the two words respectability and genius. It is all the more pleasant to use the first to denote the dull level from which he keeps aloof, in that I have a strong suspicion that during his life the author of our 9-line stanza plays may have been censured for the lack of this very quality. His sympathy with poor folk, and his dislike of the "gentlery men" who oppressed them, seem something more than conventional; and his satire is sometimes as grim as it is free. From his frequent allusions to music, his scraps of Latin and allusions to Latin authors, his dislike of Lollards, and the daring of some of his phrases, which seems to surpass what would have been permitted to a layman, it is probable that he was in orders; and the vision of the Friar Tuck of Peacock's Maid Marian rises up before me as I read his plays. As a dramatist it is difficult to praise him too highly, if we remember the limitations under which he worked, and the feeble efforts of his contemporaries and successors.

The Secunda Pastorum, the survival of which "in Archie Armstrang's Aith" Prof. Kölbing has so pleasantly illustrated (see his Appendix), is really perfect as a work of art; and if in the Prima Pastorum our author was only feeling his way, and in the Noah, Herod, etc., was cramped by the natural limitation of his subject, we have the more reason to regret that a writer of such real power had no other scope for his abilities than that offered by the cyclical miracle play. Even within these limits, however, he had room to display other gifts besides those of dramatic construction and humour. The three speeches of the Shepherds to the little Jesus are exquisite in their rustic tenderness, and even if we may not attribute to him the really terrific picture of corruption in the Lazarus, there is contrast enough between these and the denunciation of the usurers and extortioners in the Judicium. Without his aid, the Towneley cycle would have been interesting, but not more interesting than any of its three competitors. His additions entitle it to be ranked among the great works of our earlier literature.

APPENDIX.

The Secunda Pastorum of the Towneley Plays (p. 116 ff.) and Archie Armstrang's Aith.

By PROF. E. KÖLBING, Ph.D.

So far as I know, nobody has yet discovered that the leading incident in the Second Play of the Shepherds is repeated in quite another department of English Literature, viz. in Archie Armstrang's Aith, by the Rev. John Marriott, printed in 'Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border,' 5th ed. vol. iii. Edinb., 1821, p. 481 ff. Archie Armstrang was, as we learn from the Notes of this poem, p. 487 f., "a native of Eskdale, and contributed not a little towards the raising his clan to that pre-eminence which it long maintained amongst the Border thieves . . . . and there distinguished himself so much by zeal and assiduity in his professional duties, that at length he found it expedient to emigrate. . . . He afterwards became a celebrated jester in the English Court. . . . He was dismissed in disgrace in the year 1637. . . . The exploit detailed in this ballad has been preserved, with many others of the same kind, by tradition, and is at this time current in Eskdale."

The story runs as follows:—

Archie has stolen a sheep, and is pursued by the shepherds, but manages to reach his house, where, with the assistance of his wife, he skins the sheep, throws its entrails and hide into the river, and stuffs the body into a child's cradle. Then he sits down by it and sings a lullaby. At this very moment the pursuers enter the house and declare him to be the thief. But Archie protests, wants them to be quiet, because his child is dying, and swears an oath, that, if he has ever lessened the herds of his neighbour, he will eat the flesh that is now lying in the cradle. Besides, he gives them leave to ransack every corner of his house in order to find the sheep which they say he has stolen. So they search—naturally without result,—and the shepherds conclude that it was either the devil himself, that they saw running off with the sheep, or that they mistook the culprit, and that Maggie Brown is the real thief. As to Archie, when the shepherds are gone, he piques himself not a little on his ability in representing a nurse; and, at the same time, says that nobody is entitled to call him a perjurer, for he really eats up the sheep in the cradle.

We see at once the striking point in the story, that the thief and his wife hide the stolen sheep from the suspicious shepherds in a cradle, is common to both versions. Besides, I ask my readers to compare the following single passages.

When the thief returns to his house, his wife is afraid that he will be discovered and tied up; he wants her to be quiet and to help him. Towneley, p. 126—

Uxor: By the nakyd nek art thou lyke for to hyng.
Mak: Do way . . . .
Uxor: It were a fowꝑ blott to be hanged for the case.
Mak: I have skapyd, Jelott, oft as hard a glase.
Uxor: Bot so long goys the pott to the water, men says
At last
Comys it home broken.
Mak: Weꝑ knowe I the token,
Bot let it never be spoken,
Bot com and help fast.
I wold he were slayn, etc.

corresponds to Archie Armstrang's Aith, st. 6 ff.

And oh! when he stepp'd o'er the door,
His wife she look'd aghast.
"A, wherefore, Archie, wad ye slight Ilk word o' timely warning?
I trow ye will be ta'en the night,
And hangit i' the morning."
"Now hawd your tongue, ye prating wife,
And help me as ye dow;
I wad be laith to lose my life
For ae poor silly yowe."

In Town., p. 130, the thief's wife gives the following advice—

Harken ay, when thay calle: thay will com anone.
Com and make redy alle, and syng by thyn oone,
Syng lullay thou shalle . . . .
Syng lullay on fast,
When thou heris at the last.

According to Archie Armstrang's Aith, st. 13 f., Archie performs this skilful service—

And down sat Archie daintillie,
And rock'd it wi' his hand;
Siccan a rough nourice as he
Was not in a' the land.
And sattlie he began to croon,
"Hush, hushabye, my dear."
He hadna sang to sic a tune,
I trow, for mony a year.

Digitized by Google

For the rhyme croon : tune we may compare the following lines in the conversation of the shepherds in front of Mak's hut (p. 131)—

Tertius Pastor: Wiłł ye here how thay hak? Oure syre, lyst, croyne!
Primus Pastor: Hard I never none crak so clere out of toyne.

In Towneley, p. 133, Uxor says—

I pray to God so mylde,
If ever I you begyld,
That I ete this chylde,
That lygys in this credyłł.

Likewise in Archie Armstrang's Aith, st. 18, the husband—

If e'er I did sae fause a feat,
As thin my neebor's faulds,
May I doom'd the flesh to eat
This vera cradyl halds!

In both versions the shepherds, not having found anything, believe they have made a mistake; Town., p. 134—

Primus Pastor: We have merkyd amys: I hold us begyld.

Archie Armstrang's Aith, st. 22—

Or aiblins Maggie's ta'en the yowe,
And thus beguiled your e'e.

The principal difference between the two versions of the same story is, that in the play the thief, in spite of this trick, is finally discovered and punished by lynch-law, whilst according to the ballad the thief and his wife succeed in their plot, and the suspicion falls upon another. It is in harmony with this difference that the seemingly not realizable oath is only of a secondary interest in the play, while in the ballad it forms the centre of the whole.

Now the only MS. of the Towneley Plays seems to have been written in the beginning of the fifteenth century, whilst Archie Armstrang's Aith, belonging to the "Imitations of the ancient ballad," was scarcely composed long before 1802, in which year the 'Minstrelsy' made its first appearance in the literary world. It is most unlikely that John Marriott,—who, according to Allibone's Dictionary, was Curate of Broad Clift, Devon, and Rector of Church Liford, Warwickshire, and in 1820 and 1836 published some collections of sermons,—borrowed this story from the then unprinted MS. of the Towneley Plays and transferred it, of his own authority, to Archie Armstrang, so that the whole of his notes were a forgery.[1] It is much more credible that this funny tale was preserved by oral traditions, possibly in a metrical form. The tale was first brought into the Christmas story by the author of the Towneley Play, and afterwards, in the seventeenth century, transferred to the famous thief and jester, Archie Armstrang.

Whether the happy or unhappy end of the story is to be considered as the original one, is a question, which, in the want of other materials, we shall perhaps never be able to solve with any certainty.[1]

This little paper is englisht from the original in the Zeitschrift für vergleichende Litteraturgeschichte, herausgegeben von M. Koch. Neue Folge. Elfter Band, p. 137 ff.—E. K.

[1] As "bang went saxpence" would have been the result of the Shepherds kissing the babe in the cradle, I suggest that Scotch shepherds, at any rate, would never have thought of incurring such an awful liability.—F. J. F.

Cain calls to his mare.
Cayn'. Io furth̄, greyn-horne! and war' oute, gryme!
Drawes on! god gif you iⱨ to tyme!
Ye stand as ye were fallen in swyme;
What'! wiⱨ ye no forther', mare?

Pull on a bit, you shrew.
War! let' me se how down) wiⱨ draw;
Yit', shrew, yit', puⱨ on a thraw!
What'! it' semys for' me ye stand none aw!
I say, donnyng, go fare!
A, ha! god gif the soro & care!

You're the worst mare I ever had in plough.
lo! now hard she ȝwhat I saide;
now yit' art thou the warst mare
In plogh̄ that' eu*er* I haide.

(4)

He calls the Boy.
How! pike-harnes, how! com hed*er* belife!

[Enter Garcio.]

They wrangle.
Garcio. I fend, god*is* forbot, that eu*er* thou thrife!
Cayn. What', boy, shal I both̄ hold and drife?
heris thou not how I cry?
Garcio. Say, maⱨ and stott, wiⱨ ye not' go?
Lemyng', moreⱨ, white-horne, Io!
now wiⱨ ye not se how thay hy?

(5)

Cayn'. Gog gif the sorow, boy; want' of mete it gars.

Abel. Yis, all the good thou has in wone
Of godis grace is bot a lone.
Cayn. Lenys he me, as com thrift apon the so?
ffor he has euer yit beyn my fo;
ffor had he my freynd beyn,
Other gatis it had beyn seyn.
When all mens corn was fayre in feld
Then was myne not worth a neld[1];
When I shuld saw, & wantyd seyde,
And of corn had full grete neyde,
Then gaf he me none of his,
No more will I gif hym of this.
hardely hold me to blame
bot if I serue hym of the same.
Abel. Leif brother, say not so,
bot let vs furth togeder go;
Good brother, let vs weynd sone,
no longer here I rede we hone.
Cayn. Yei, yei, thou Iangyls waste;
the dwill me spede if I haue hast,
As long as I may lif,
to dele my good or gif
Ather to god or yit to man, of any good that euer I wan;
ffor had I giffen away my goode,
then myght I go with a ryffen hood,
And it is better hold that I haue then go from doore to doore & craue.
Abel. Brother, com furth, in godis name,
I am full ferd that we get blame;
Hy we fast that we were thore.
Cayn. We! ryn on, in the dwills nayme Before!
Wemay, man, I hold the mad!
wenys thou now that I list gad

Abel doesn't want to go without him.

Abel. Dere brother, hit were grete wonder that I & thou shuld go in sonder,
Then wold oure fader haue grete ferly;
Ar we not brether, thou & I?
Cayn. No, bot cry on, cry, whyls the thynk good;
Here my trowth, I hold the woode;
Whedher that he be blithe or wroth to dele my good is me full lothe.
I haue gone oft on softer wise ther I trowed som prow wold rise.

I see I must come then. Go on before.

Bot well I se go must I nede;
now weynd before, ill myght thou spede!
syn that we shall algatis go.
Abel. leif brother, whi sais thou so?

Let us go together, says Abel.

Bot go we furth both togeder;
blissid be god we haue fare weder.
Cayn. lay downe thi trussell apon this hill.
Abel. fforsoth broder, so I will:
Gog of heuen, take it to good.

You tithe first, says Cain.

Cayn. Thou shall tend first if thou were wood.
Abel. God that shope both erth and heuen),
I pray to the thou here my steven),
And take in thank, if thi will be,
the tend that I offre here to the;
ffor I gif it in good entent to the, my lord, that all has sent.

Abel burns his tithes.

I bren it now, with stedfast thogh̄t,
In worship of hym that all has wrogh̄t.
Cayn. Ryse! let me now, syn thou has done;

Cain begins tithing.

lord of heuen, thou here my boyne!
And ouer, godis forbot, be to the thank or thew to kun me;
ffor, as browke I thise two shankys,
It is full sore, myne vnthankys,
The teynd that I here gif to the,
of corn, or thyng, that newys me;
Bot now begyn will I then,
syn I must nede my tend to bren).

Abel. Came, of god me thynke thou has no drede.

Devil speed me if he get a sheaf more.

Cain. Now and he get more, the dwil me spede!
As mych as oone reepe,
for that cam hym ful light chepe;
Not as mekil, grete ne smal,
as he myght wipe his ars with al.
for that, and this that lyys here,
haue cost me ful dere;

I had many a weary back in getting this.

Or it was shorne, and broght in stak,
had I many a wery bak; Therfor aske me no more of this,
for I haue giffen that my wil is.

Abel. Cam, I rede thou tend right for drede of hym that sittis on hight.

Never you mind how I'm tithing.

Cayn. How that I tend, rek the neuer a deil, bot tend thi skabbid shepe wele;
for if thou to my teynd tent take,
It bese the wars for thi sake.
Thou wold I gaf hym this shefe, or this sheyfe;

Here are two sheaves, and that must do.

na, nawder of thise [two [1]] wil I leife; Bot take this, now has he two,
and for my saul now mot it go, Bot it gos sore agans my wil,
and shal he like ful il.

Abel. Cam, I reyde thou so teynd that god of heuen be thi freynd.

Cayn. My freynd? na, not bot if he wil!
I did hym neuer yit bot skil.
If he be neuer so my fo,
I am avisid gif hym no mo;
Bot chaunge thi conscience, as I do myn, yit teynd thou not thi mesel swyne?

Abel. If thou teynd right thou mon it fynde.

Cayn. Yei, kys the dwils ars behynde;
The dwil hang the bi the nek!
how that I teynd, neuer thou rek.

Cease your jangling.

Wil thou not yit hold thi peasse?
of this Ianglyng I reyde thou seasse.

Noe. (1)

Noah praises God for His work of creation.

Myghtfull god veray / Maker of all that is,
Thre persons withoutten nay / oone god in endles blis,
Thou maide both nyght & day / beest, fowle, & fysh,
All creatures that lif may / wroght thou at thi wish,
As thou wel myght;
The son, the moyne, verament,
Thou maide; the firmament,
The sternes also full feruent,
To shyne thou maide ful bright.

He recalls the making of the angels

Angels thou maide ful euen / all orders that is,
To haue the blis in heuen / this did thou more & les,
ffull mervelus to neuen / yit was ther vnkyndnes,
More bi fold*is* seuen / then I can well expres;
ffor whi?
Of all angels in brightnes
God gaf lucifer most lightnes, Yit prowdly he flyt his des,
And set hym euen hym by.

(3)

and the fall of Lucifer.

He thought hymself as worthi / as hym that hym made,
In brightnes, in bewty / therfor he hym degrade;
put hym in a low degre / soyn after, in a brade, hym and all his menye / wher he may be vnglad ffor euer.
shall thay neuer wyn away
hence vnto domysday, Bot burne in bayle for ay,
shall thay neuer dysseuer.

(4)

Noah recalls the creation of Adam & Eve

Soyne after that gracyous lord / to his liknes maide man),
That place to be restord / euen as he began),
Of the trinite bi accord / Adam & eue that woman),
To multiplie without discord / In paradise put he thaym),
And sithen to both
Gaf in commaundement,
On the tre of life to lay no hend;
Bot yit the fals feynd
Made hym with man wroth,

(5)

and their Fall.

Entysyd man to glotony / styrd him to syn in pride;
Bot in paradise securly / myght no syn abide,
And therfor man full hastely / was put out, in that tyde,
In wo & wandreth for to be / In paynes full vnrid
To knawe,[1]
ffyrst in erth, in sythen in hell with feynd*is* for to dwell, Bot he his mercy mell
To those that will hym trawe.

[Fol. 8, a. Sig. C, 4.]

Oyle of mercy he Hus light / As I haue Hard red,
To euery lifyng wight / that wold luf hym and dred;
Bot now before his sight / euery liffyng leyde,

All living people now sin boldly.

Most party day and nyght / syn in word and dede
ffull bold;
Som in pride, Ire, and enuy,
Som in Couet[yse][2] & glotyny,
Som in sloth and lechery,
And other wise many fold.

(7)

So that he dreads God's vengeance.

Therfor I drede lest god / on vs will take veniance, ffor syn is now alod / without any repentance;
Sex hundreth yeris & od / haue I, without distance,
In erth, as any sod / liffyd with grete grevance
All way;

And now I wax old, Noah himself is old.
seke, sory, and cold,
As muk apon mold
I widder away; 63

(8)

Bot yit with I cry / for mercy and call; He calls to God for mercy.
Noe thi seruant, am I / lord ouer all!
Therfor me and my fry / shal with me fall;
saue from velany / and bryng to thi hall
In heuen); 68
And kepe me from syn,
This warld within;
Comly kyng of mankyn,
I pray the here my stevyn)! [God appears above.]

(9)

Deus. Syn I haue maide all thyng / that is liffand, God soliloquizes. He has made all men & they should love Him & repent.
Duke, emperour, and kyng / with myne awne hand,
ffor to haue thare likyng / bi see & bi sand, Euery man to my bydyng / shuld be bowand
ffull feruent; 77
That maide man sich a creatoure, ffarest of favoure,
Man must luf me paramoure,
by reson, and repent. 81

(10)

Me thoght I shewed man luf / when I made hym to be
All angels abuf / like to the trynyte; But they lie sunk in sin, for which He will take vengeance.
And now in grete reprufe / full low ligis he,
In erth hymself to stuf / with syn that displeasse me
Most of all; 86
Veniance will I take,
In erth for syn sake,
My grame thus will I wake,
both of grete and small. 90

(11)

I repente full sore / that euer maide I man), He repents He ever made man.
Bi me he settis no store / and I am his soferan;
I will distroy therfor / Both beest, man, and woman, [Fol. 8, b.]
All shall perish les and more / that bargan may thay ban,

The earth is full of sin.

That iꝧ has done. 95
In erthꝫ I se rightꝰ noghtꝰ
Botꝰ syn that is vnsoght;
Ofꝫ those that weꝧ has wroght
ffyndꝫ I bot[1] a fone. 99

(12)

God will destroy it with floods,

Therforꝰ shaꝧ I fordo / Aꝧ this mediꝧ-erd withꝫ floodis that shaꝧ flo / & ryn with hidous rerdꝫ;
I haue good cause therto / fforꝰ me no man is ferdꝫ,
As I say shal I do / ofꝫ veniance draw my swerdꝫ,

& make end of every thing living, save Noah & his wife.

And make endꝫ 104
ofꝫ all that beris life, Sayfꝫ noe and his wife,
fforꝰ thay wold neuer stryfe
With me [ne] me offendꝫ. [MS. then.] 108

(13)

He will warn Noah quickly.

hym to mekiꝧ wyn / hastly wiꝧ I go,
To noe my seruand, orꝰ I blyn / to warn hym of his wo.
In erthꝫ I se botꝰ syn / reynand to and fro, Emangꝫ bothꝫ more & myn / ichon other fo;
With aꝧ thare entent; 113
Aꝧ shaꝧ I fordo
with floodis that shall floo, wirk shaꝧ I thaym wo,
That wiꝧ not repent. [God descends & comes to Noah.]

(14)

God bids Noah build a ship

Noe, my freend, I thee commaund / from cares the to keyle, 118
A ship that thou ordand / of nayle and bordꝫ ful wele.
Thou was alway weꝧ wirkand / to me trew as stele,
To my bydyng obediand / frendshiꝑ shal thou fele
To mede; 122
of lenthꝫ thi ship be 300 cubits long, 30 high, 50 broad.

Thre hundrethꝫ cubettis, warn I the,
Of heghꝫt euen thrirte,
of fyfty als in brede. 126

Noah asks who it is who speaks.

Noe. A! benedicite! / what art' thou that thus Tellys afore that' shaH be? / thou art fuH mervelus!
TeH me, for' charite / thi name so gracius.

God declares Himself.

Deus. My name is of dignyte / and also fuH glorius
To knawe.[1]
I am god most myghty,
Oone god in trynyty,
Made the and ich̄ man to be;
To luf me weH thou awe.

Noah thanks Him for appearing to a simple knave like himself, & begs His blessing.

Noe. I thank the, lord, so dere / that wold' vowch̄ sayf'
Thus low to appere / to a symple knafe;
Blis vs, lord, here / for charite I hit crafe,
The better may we stere / the ship that' we shaH hafe, Certayn).

God blesses him.

Deus. Noe, to the and to thi fry
My blyssyng graunt I;
Ye shaH wax and multiply,
And fiH the erth̄ agane,

When aH thise flood*is* ar' past' / and fully gone away.

Noah says he will go tell his wife.

Noe. lord, homward wiH I hast' / as fast as that I may;
My [wife] wiH I frast' / what she wiH say, [Exit Deus.]
And I am agast' / that we get som fray Betwixt vs both̄;
ffor' she is fuH tethee,
ffor' litiH oft' angre,
If any thyng' wrang be,
Soyne is she wroth̄. Tunc perget ad vxorem).

(52) [Fol. 12, a.]

Noe. The thryd tyme wiⱡ I prufe / what depnes we bere. Noah takes soundings a third time, & touches ground.
*Vxor*ʾ. Now long shaⱡ thou hufe / lay in thy lyne there.
Noe. I may towcⱨ withⱨ my lufe / the grownd evyn here.
*Vxor*ʾ. Then begynnys to grufe / to vs mery chere; Bot, husband,
What grownd may this be?
Noe. The hyllys of armonye. They are on the hills of Armenia.
*Vxor*ʾ. Now blissid be he
That thus for vs can ordand!

(53)

Noe. I see toppys of hyllys he / many at a sygⱨt,
No thyng to let me / the wedir is so bright.
*Vxor*ʾ. Thise ar of mercy / tokyns fuⱡ rigⱨt.
Noe. Dame, thi counseⱡ me / what fowⱡ best mygⱨt, Noah asks his wife what bird will fly away & soonest bring back a token of mercy.
And Cowthⱨ,
withⱨ fligⱨt of wyng
bryng, *with*out taryying,
Of mercy som tokynyng
Aythir bi north or southⱨe?

Noah and his family pray to God that the birds may return with good news.

To hym that is alone / worthiest of degre,
That he wold send anone / oure fowles som fee
To glad vs.
Vxor. Thai may not fayH of land,
The wat*er* is so wanand.
Noe. Thank we god aH weldand,
That lord that made vs.

(56)

He wonders why they tarry so long.

It is a wond*er* thyng / me thynk sothle,

This showed clearly that he was to marry Mary.

He was sad, but no excuses helped him, & they were married.

yⱧ thryft' on thy pate!
Though the shrew cam late,
yit is he in state
To dyne, if he had it. 153

[Fol. 40, a.]

(18)

*Terci*us *past*or. Sich *ser*uand*ys* as I / that' swettys and swynkys, Daw says servants sweat & swink, but they eat their bread dry, & their master & dame nip at their hire.

Etys oure brede fuⱧ dry / and that me forthynkys;
We ar oft' weytt' and wery /. when mast*er*-men wynkys, yit' com*m*ys fuⱧ lately / both dyners and drynkys,
Bot' nately. 158
Both oure dame and oure syre,
when we haue ryn in the myre,
Thay can nyp at' oure hyre,
And pay vs fuⱧ lately. 162

(19)

Bot' here my trouth, master / for the fayr that' ye make,

He tells them he will work as he is paid, for a cheap bargain yields but poorly.

I shaⱧ do therafter / wyrk as I take;
I shaⱧ do a lytyⱧ, s*ir* / and emang eu*er* lake, ffor yit' lay my soper / neu*er* on my stomake
In feyldys. 167
Wherto shuld' I threpe?
with my staf can I lepe,
And men say "lyght' chepe letherly for-yeldys." 171

(20)

*prim*us *past*or. Thou were an yⱧ lad / to ryde on wowyng

The first shepherd says Daw would be an ill lad to go a-wooing with a poor master.

With a man that' had / bot' lytyⱧ of spendyng.
*ij*us *past*or. Peasse, boy, I bad / no more Iangling, Or I shaⱧ make the fuⱧ rad / by the heuen's kyng!
with thy gawdys; 176
wher ar oure shepe, boy, we skorne?

The shepherds ask after their sheep.

*iij*us *past*or. Sir, this same day at' morne
I thaym left' in the corne, when thay rang lawdys; 180

The three shepherds sing a song, taking tenor, treble, & mean.

Thay haue pasture good / thay can not go wrong.
*prim*us *past*or. That is right, by the roode! / thyse nyght*ys* ar long, yit I wold, or we yode / oone gaf vs a song.
*ij*us *past*or. So I thoght as I stode / to myrth vs emong.
*iij*us *past*or. I grauntt.
*prim*us *past*or. lett me syng the tenory.
*ij*us *past*or. And I the tryble so hye.
*iij*us *past*or. Then the meyne fallys to me;
lett se how ye chauntt.

Tunc intrat mak, in clamide se super togam vestitus.

Mak comes on, wishing he were in heaven, where no bairns weep.

Mak. Now lord, for thy naymes sevyn[1] / that made both moyn & starnes Weh mo then I can neuen / thi wih, lorde, of me tharnys;
[Fol. 40, b.] I am ah vneuen / that moves oft my harnes,
Now Wold god I were in heuen / for there[2] wepe no barnes So styh.
*prim*us *past*or. Who is that pypys so poore?
Mak. wold god ye wyst how I foore!
lo, a man that walk*ys* on the moore,
And has not ah his wyh!

The 2nd shepherd asks the news. Daw bids each man look to his goods.

*secund*us *past*or. Mak, where has thou gon[3]? / teh vs tythyng.
*Terci*us *past*or. Is he commen? then ylkon / take hede to his thyng.

*& accip*it *clamid*em *ab ip*so.

Mak says he is the king's yeoman, & must have reverence.

Mak. what! ich be a yoman / I teh you, of the king;
The self and the same / sond from a greatt lordyng,
And sich.
ffy on you! goyth hence
Out of my presence!
I must haue reuerence;

264 Mak says a mock night-spell.

277

He sees a chance of stealing a sheep.

282

He uses a spell to make the shepherds sleep till noon.

[Fol. 41, b.]

286

291 When he finds by their snoring that they are sleeping hard he "borrows" a sheep & carries it home.

295

He knocks, & his wife Gyll asks "Who is it?"

Gyll says she is spinning & can't be interrupted for nothing.

I am sett for to spyn / I hope not I myght Ryse a penny to wyn, / I shrew them on hight!
So farys
A huswyff that has bene
To be rasyd thus betwene:
here may no note be sene
ffor sich smaH charys.

When she recognizes Mak's voice she let's him in; "his sheep-stealing will end in his being hanged."

Mak. Good wyff, open the hek! / seys thou not what I bryng?
Vxor. I may thole the dray the snek. / A, com in, my swetyng!
Mak. yee, thou thar not rek / of my long standyng.
Vxor. By the nakyd nek / art thou lyke for to hyng.
Mak. Do way:
I am worthy my mete,
ffor in a strate can I gett
More then thay that swynke and swette
AH the long day,

(36)

Mak has done it before, but "so long goes the pot to the water that it is broken at last!"

Thus it feH to my lott / gyH, I had sich grace.
Vxor. It were a fowH blott / to be hanged for the case.
Mak. I haue skapyd, Ielott / oft as hard a glase.
Vxor. Bot so long goys the pott / to the wat*er*, men says,
At last
Comys it home broken.
Mak. weH knowe I the token,
Bot let it neu*er* be spoken;
Bot com and help fast.

Mak wants a dinner off the sheep at once, but they are afraid the shepherds may follow him.

I wold he were slayn / I lyst weH ete:
This twelmothe was I not so fayn / of oone shepe mete.
Vxor. Com thay or he be slayn / and here the shepe blete!
Mak. Then myght I be tane, / that were a cold swette!

Thatꝫ frely to we com beforne;
Syrs, go we now.

[The kings retire. Herod and his messenger advance.]

(44)

Herod's messenger is reproached for his long absence.

Nuncius. Mahowne, thatꝫ is of greattꝫ pausty,
My lord, s*ir* herode, the saue and se!
herodes. where has þou bene so long fro me,
Vyle stynkand lad?
Nuncius. Lord, gone youre herandꝫ in this cuntre,
As ye me bad.

Herodꝫ. Thou lyys, lurdan, the dewiH the hang!
why has thou dweltꝫ away so lang?
His tidings are good & ill, mingled together.
Nuncius. lordꝫ ye wyte me aH with wrang.
Herodes. what tythyng*ys*? say!
Nuncius. Som good, som yH, mengyd emang.

Joseph is grieved for Mary. He tells her they must flee.

My fors me falys to fare,[1] [Mary with her Babe advances.] and sight' that' I shuld' se.
Mary, my darlyng dere,
I am fuH wo for the!
Maria. A, leyf Ioseph, what' chere?
youre sorow on this manere
It' mekiH meruels me.
Iosepħ. Oure noyes ar neghand' nere
If we dweH longer here;
ffor-thi behofes vs fle,
And flytt.
Maria. Alas! how may this be?
what' euer menys it'?

[Fol. 54, a. Sig. I. 4.]

Iosepħ. It menys of sorow enoghe.
Maria. A, dere Ioseph, how so?

An angel has warned him that Herod would slay her son.

Iosepħ. As I lay in a swogh, ffuH sad slepand and thro,
An angeH to me drogh,
As blossom bright' on bogh,
And told betwix vs two,
That' herode wroght' greatt' wogh,
And aH knaue children slogh
In land that' he myght' to,
That' feynd!
And he thy son wold' slo
And shamely sheynd.

Maria. My son? alas, for care! Mary is aghast at Herod's wickedness.
who may my doyllys dyȝt?
wo worthꝫ fals herode are!
my son why shuldꝫ he spyȝt? 82
Alas! I lurk and dare!
To slo this barne I bare, whatꝫ wightꝫ in warldꝫ had wyȝt? 85
his hartꝫ shuld be fulȝ sare Sichon for to fare,
Thatꝫ neuer yitꝫ dyd yȝ, 88
Ne thoghtꝫ.
Iosephꝫ. Now leyfe mary, be stylȝ! Joseph says this helps nought.
This helpys noght; 91

Maria. Alas! how shuldꝫ I lete? Mary asks his counsel.
My son thatꝫ is so swete
Is soght for to be slayn; 98
ffulȝ gryle may I grete,
My fomen and I mete;
Telȝ me, Iosephꝫ, with mayn, 101
youre red.
Iosephꝫ. Shortly swedyȝ vs this swayn, Joseph bids her swaddle the child and flee.
And fle hys dede. 104

(9)

Maria. his ded wold I not se, ffor alȝ this warldꝫ to wyn;
Alas! fulȝ wo were me,
In two if we shuldꝫ twyn; 108
My chyldꝫ so bright of ble,
To slo hym were pyte,
And a fulȝ hedus syn. 111
Dere Ioseph, whatꝫ red ye?
Iosephꝫ. Tylȝ egyp weynd shalȝ we;

Ther is noght els to say
bot tytt pak vp oure gere;

[Fol. 54, b.]

ffor ferd of this affray, lett vs weynd hens away,
Or any do vs dere.

Mary calls to God to protect them.

Maria. Greatt god, as he weH may,
That shope both nyght and day,
ffrom wandreth he vs were,
And shame;
My chyld how shuld I bere
So far from hame?

(11)

She is full of woe.

Alas! I am fuH wo!
was neuer wyght so wyH!

Joseph says he may well be also. Why will not death slay him?

Ioseph. God wote I may say so,
I haue mater ther tyH;
ffor I may vnyth go
To lede of land sich two;
No wonder if I be wyH,
And sythen has many a fo.
A, why wyH no ded me slo?
My lyfe I lyke yH
And sare;
he that aH doyls may dyH,
he keyH my care!

(12)

Young men should beware, for wedding is making him all wan.

So wyH a wyght as I,
In warld was neuer man;
howsehold and husbandry
ffuH sore I may it ban;
That bargan dere I by.
yong men, bewar, red I:
wedyng makys me aH wan.

*Pilat*us. (1)

Pilate calls for silence.

Peas, carles, I commaunde[2] / vnconand I caƕ you ;
I say stynt' and stande / or fouƕ myght befaƕ you.
ffro this burnyshyd brande / now when I behald' you,
I red ye be shunand / or els the dwiƕ skald you,
At' onys.
I am kyd, as men knawes,
leyf leder of lawes ;
Seniours, seke to my sawes, ffor bryssyng of youre bonys.

He is the grandsir of Great Mahound, and is called Pilate.

ye wote not wel, I weyn / what wat is commen to the towne,
So comly cled and cleyn / a rewler of great renowne ;
In sight' if I were seyn / the granser of great mahowne,
My name pylate has beyn / was neu*er* kyng with crowne
More wor[thy] ;
My wysdom and my wytt,
In sete here as I sytt,
was neu*er* more lyke it',
My dedys thus to dyscry.

(3)

He can make or mar a man, like men of court now.

ffor I am he that may / make or mar a man ;
My self if I it say / as men of cowrte now can ;

Supporte a man to day / to-morñ agans hym than,
On both parties thus I play / And fenys me to ordan
The right; 23
Bot' aH fals indytars,[1]
Quest' mangers and Iurers,
And aH thise fals out rydars,
Ar welcom to my sight. 27

False indictors, questmongers, jurors, and all these false outriders are dear to him.

(4)

More nede had I neuer / of sich seruand now, I say you, [Fol. 67, b.]
So can I weH consider / the trowthñ I most displeas you,
And therfor com I hedyr / of peas therfor I pray you;
Ther is a lurdan ledyr / I wold not shuld dysmay you,
A bowtt; 32
A *pr*ophete is he prasyd,
And great vnright has rasyd, Bot', be my banys her blasid,
his deth is dight no dowtt. 36

He has heard of a lazy rascal praised as a prophet.

(5)

he prechys the pepyH here / that fature fals ih*esus*,
That' if he lyf a yere / dystroy oure law must vs;
And yit' I stand in fere / so wyde he wyrkys vertus,
No fawt' can on hym bere / no lyfand leyde tyH us;
Bot' sleyghtys 41
Agans hym shaH be soght,
that' aH this wo has wroght;
Bot on his bonys it shaH be boght,
So shaH I venge oure rightys. 45

If He live a year He will destroy their law, but yet Pilate is in fear of Him.

That' fatoure says that' thre / shuld eu*er* dweH in oone godhede,
That' eu*er* was and shaH be / Sothfast in man hede;
he says of a madyn born was he / that' neu*er* toke mans sede,
And that' his self shaH dy on tre / and mans sawH out of p*re*son lede;
let hym alone, 50
If this be true in deyd, his shech shaH spryng and sprede,
And ouer com eu*er* ylkon*e*. 53

This fellow says that three persons shall dwell in one godhead, that He was born of a maiden, and shall be crucified.

Cayphas asks Pilate's advice as to hideous harms

Cayphas. Syr pilate, prynce of mekyH price, that preuyd is withoutten pere,
And lordyng*ys* that oure laws in lyse,
on oure law now must vs lere,
And of oure warkys we must' be wyse, or els is aH oure welthe in were,
Therfor say sadly youre auyse,
of hedus harmes that we haue here, arising from that strong traitor.

(8)

Towchyng that tratoure strang,
that' makys this beleyf,
ffor if he may thus furth gang,
It' wiH ou*er* greatly grefe.

(9)

Anna supports him.

Anna. Sir, oure folk ar so afrayd, thrugh lesyns he losys oure lay;
Som remedy must be rayd,
so that he weynd' not' thus away.

Pilate says they must find some privy point to mar Christ's might.

*pilat*us. Now certan, syrs, this was weH sayd, and I assent, right as ye say,
Som p*r*euay poynt' to be puruayd
To mar his myght' if [that] we may;

(10)

And therfor, sirs, in this p*r*esent,
What poynt so were to prase,
let aH be at' assent',
let se what ilk man says.

(11)

Cayphas and Anna enlarge on the danger from Christ.

Cayphas. Sir, I haue sayde you here beforne his soteltyes and' gref*ys* to sare;
he turnes oure folk both euen & morne,
and ay mak*ys* mastres mare & mare.
Anna. Sir, if he skape it were great skorne;
to spyH hy*m* tytt we wiH not' spare,
ffor if oure lawes were thus-gat*ys* lorne, men wold say it were lake of lare.

*Pilat*us. ffor certan, syrs, ye say right' weyH ffor to wyrk witterly;
Bot' yit som fawt must' we feyH,
wherfor that' he shuld dy;

[Fol. 68, a. Sig. l. 4.]
Pilate says they must find some fault for which He is to die.

(13)

And therfor, sirs, let se youre saw, ffor what' thyng we shuld hym slo.
Cayphas. Sir, I can rekyn you on a raw a thowsand wonders, and weH moo,
Of crokyd men, that we weH knaw,
how graythly that' he gars them go,
And eu*er* he leg*ys* agans oure law, tempys oure folk and turnys vs fro.

Cayphas says Christ straightens the crooked, and is always tempting the people from the law.

(14)

Anna. lord, dom and defe in oure present delyuers he, by downe & dayH;
what hurt*ys* or ha[r]mes thay hent,
ffuH hastely he mak*ys* theym hayH.
And for sich wark*ys* as he is went of ilk welth he may avayH,
And vnto vs he tak*ys* no tent,
bot' ilk man trowes vnto his tayH.

He takes no heed unto them.

(15)

*Pilat*us. yei, dewiH! and dos he thus as ye weH bere wytnes?
sich fawte faH to vs,
be oure dom̃, for to redres.

Pilate says he must redress this.

Cayphas. And also, s*ir*, I haue hard say, an other noy that' neghys vs nere,
he wiH not' kepe oure sabate day,
that' holy shuld be haldyn here;
Bot forbedys far and nere to wyrk at' oure bydyng.
*Pilat*us. Now, by mahowns bloode so dere, he shaH aby this bowrdyng!

Also, Cayphas says Christ breaks the Sabbath.

The first knight says they will take Jesus in the Temple.

[Fol. 68, b.]

Pilatus. In oure tempyH? the dwiH! what dyd he thare?
that shaH he by, by mahou*ns* blode!

(23)

Secundus Miles. lord, we wist not' youre wyH;
with wrang ye vs wyte;
had ye so told vs tyH,
we shuld haue takyn hym tyte.

If the knights had known this they would have taken Jesus before.

(24)

Pilatus. The dwiH, he hang you higH to dry!
whi, wold ye lese oure lay?

This tyde. 111

Pilate reminds Jesus of His power.

*Pilat*us. herk, felow, com nere!
Thou knowes I haue powere
To excuse or to dampne here,
In bayH to abyde. 115

(12)

Jesus says the power is given him by the Trinity.

Ih*esus*. Sich powere has thou nought' / to wyrk thi wiH thus witH me, Bot' from my fader that is brought' / oone-fold god in p*er*sons thre.
*Pilat*us. Cert*ys*, it is fallen weH in my thought' / at this tyme, as weH wote ye,

They would scourge Jesus to death, but for Pilate.

Of skap.
Secundus tortor. Do, rug him.
Tercius tortor. Do, dyng hym.
primus tortor. Nay, I myself shuld kyH hym Bot' for sir pilate.

(16)

They call to mind His miracles—His turning water into wine and walking on the sea,

Syrs, at the ffeste of architreclyn / this prophete he was;
Ther turnyd he water into wyn / that day he had sich grace, his apostels to hym can enclyn / and other that' ther was;
The see he past bot' few yeres syn / it' lete hym walk theron apase

His claim of kingship,

His boast [Fol. 90, a., Sig. O. 2.] of destroying the temple, and raising it in three days.

In despite of His lies they will divide His clothes between them.

There is one garment too good to be cut: for this they will draw lots.

(47)

I am his oonly son, / his forward to fulfyH, Togeder wiH we won, / In sonder when we wyH.

Sathan. Godd*ys* son! nay, then myght thou be glad,
for no cateH thurt the craue;
Bot thou has lyffyd ay lyke a lad,
In sorow, and as a sympiH knaue.

(49)

*Ih*esus. That was for the hartly luf I had Vnto mans sauH, it forto saue,
And forto make the masyd and mad,
And for that reson rufully to rafe.

He has concealed His Godhead to save men's souls and confound the devil.

(50)

My godhede here I hyd
In mary, mod*er* myne,

Myghty god for to dyscryfe / that neu*er* dyed, ne shaH, — Thomas greets the other disciples. Peter tells him of the Resurrection.
wo and wandreth from you dryfe / that ye not therin faH.
petrus. he the saue with wound*ys* fyfe / his son ih*es*u to caH,
That rose from deth to lyfe / and shewyd hym tiH vs aH.

(42)

Thomas. whannow, peter! art thou mad? / on lyfe who was hym lyke! — Thomas thinks Peter mad, and reminds him how he forsook Christ.
ffor his deth I am not glad / for sorow my hart wiH breke,
That with the Iues he was so stad / to ded they can hym wreke;
Thou hym forsoke, so was thou rad / when they to the can speke.

(43)

paulus. let be, leyf brothere thomas / and turne thi thoght belyfe, — Paul tells of Christ's appearance to them.
ffor the thryd day ih*es*us rase / fleshly fro ded to lyfe;
TiH vs aH he cam a pase / and shewyd his wound*ys* fyfe,
And lyfyng man, and etten hase / hony takyn of a hyfe.

Thomas. Let be for shame! apartly / ffantom dyssauys the! — [Fol. 114, b.] ye sagh hym not bodely / his gost it mygHt weH be, — Thomas thinks them deceived.
fforto glad youre hartes sory / in youre aduersyte;
he luffyd vs weH and faythfully / therfor sloes sorow me.

Tercius apostolus. Thou wote, thomas / and sothe it was, and oft has thou hard say, — A third apostle recalls the miracle of Jonah.
how a fysh swalod ionas / thre dayes therin he lay;
yit gaf god hym myght to pas / whyk man to wyn away;
Myght not god that sich myght has / rase his son apon the thryd day?

(46)

Thomas. Man, if thou can vnderstand / cryst saide his self, mynnys me, That aH lokyn was in his hande / aH oone was god and he!

The fourth, fifth, and sixth apostles try to convince Thomas of the reality of Christ's appearance.

The son wax marke, aH men seand / when he dieꝺ on the tre, Therfor am I fuH sore dredandꝺ / that who myght his boote be. 203

*Quart*us *apo*stolus. The holy gost in marye light / and in hir madynhede Godd*is* son she heldꝺ and dight / and cled hym in manhede;
ffor luf he wentt as he had hight / to fight withoutten drede;

When He had finished the fight He skipped out of the body which clothed Him, when he had termynd that fight / he skypt outt of his wede. 207

Thomas. If he skypt outt of his clethyng / yit thou graunt*ys* his cors was deꝺ;
It was his cors that maide shewyng / vnto you in his sted;
fforto trow in youre carpyng / my hart is hevy as led;
his dede me bryng*ys* in great mowrneyng / and I witħ-outten red. 211 rescued the souls in hell, and rose again in His body.

*Quint*us *apo*stol*us*. The gost went to heH a pase / whils the cors lay slayn,
And broght the sawles from sathanas / for whicħ he suffreꝺ payn;
The thryd day right he gase / right vnto the cors agayn,
Mighty god and man he rase [1] / and therfor ar we fayn. 215

(50)

Thomas. AH sam to me ye flyte / youre resons fast ye shawe, Bot teH me a skyH *per*fyte / any of you on raw; 217
when cryst cam you to vysyte / as ye teH me witħ saw,
A whyk man from a spyryte / wherby coutħ ye hym knaw?

*Sext*us *apostol*us. Thomas, vnto the anone / herto answere I wiH; Man has botħ flesħ and bone / hu, hyde, and hore thertiH;
sicħ thyng has goost none / thomas, lo, here thi skyH;
Godd*is* son toke of mary flesh and bone / what nede were els thertiH? 223

Thomas. Thou has answerd me ffuⁿ Wele / and⁽ fuⁿ skylfully, [Fol. 115, a. Sig. R. 3.]
Bot my hart is harde as stele / to trow in sicⁿ mastry ; Thomas asks if Christ bade any of the apostles feel His body.
Say, bad he any of you fele / the wound*ys* of his body, fflesh or bone or ilka dele / to assay his body?

*septim*us *apostol*us. yis, thomas, he bad vs se / and handiⁿ hym withⁿ hande, They tell him yes.
To loke whed*er* it were he / ih*es*u, man lyfand,
That dyed apon a tre / flesh and bone we fand,
his woundes had bene pyte / to towchⁿ that were bledand.

(54)

Thomas. Waloway! ye can no good / youre resons ar defaced, He still thinks a ghost appeared to them.
ye ar as women rad for blood⁽ / and lightly oft solaced ;
It was a goost before you stod / lyke hym in blood betraced, his cors that dyed on rood / for euer hath detⁿ embraced.

(55)

*Octau*us *apostol*us. Cert*ys*, thomas, gretter care / mygⁿt no synfuⁿ wight haue The eighth apostle tells him of Christ's appearance to the Magdalene.
Then she had, that wepyd so sare / the mawdleyn at his graue ;
ffor sorow and doyⁿ hir awne hare / of hir hede she rent and rafe, Ih*es*u shewid⁽ hym tiⁿ hir thare / hir sorow of syn to safe.

(56)

Thomas. lo, sicⁿ foly with you is / wysemen that shuld be, Thomas still scoffs.
That thus a womans witnes trowys / better than that ye se !
In aⁿ youre skylles more and les / for mysfowndyng fayⁿ ye ;
Might I se ih*es*u gost and flesh / gropyng shuld not gab me.

(57)

*Noue*nus *apostol*us. lefe thomas, flyte no more / bot trow and turne thi red, The tenth apostle reminds him how Christ foretold His own resurrection.
Or els say vs when and whore / crist gabbyd in any sted ;
ffor he saide vs when thou was thore / when he hym gaf in bred⁽,
That he shuld⁽ salfe aⁿ oure sore / quyk rysand fro ded⁽.

Thomas owns Christ's truthfulness, but will not believe He lives.

Thomas. he was fuⱨ sothfast in his sawes / that dar I hertly say,
And rightwys in aⱨ his lawes / whils that he lyfyd ay ;
Bot sen he shuld thole hard thrawes / on tre whils that he lay,
Dede has determyd his dayes / his lyfe noght trow I may.

*Decim*us *apostol*us. Thyne hard hart thi sauⱨ wiⱨ dwyrd / Thomas, bot if thou blyn ;
he has ded conquerd / and weshen vs aⱨ fro syn.
May nawder knyfe ne swerde / hym eft to ded wyn ;
Godd*ys* myght in hym apperd / that neu*er* more shaⱨ blyn.

(60)

[Fol. 115, b.] He appeared to them in spirit not in the body.

Thomas. That god I trow fuⱨ Wele / goostly to you light, Bot bodely neuer a dele / ih*es*u that woundid wyght.
My hart is harde as stele / to trow in sicⱨ a myght,
Bot if I that wounde myght fele / that hym gaf longeus the knyght.

Tercius apostolus. That must' thou nedelyng*ys* trow / if thou thi sauꝧ wiꝧ saue, — Thomas still thinks the other apostles mistaken.
ffor that we sa we dar avowe / ihesū rose quyk from graue.
Thomas. I haue you saide, and yit dos now / thise wordes to wast ye haue;
he shewid hym not to you / for mysfoundyng ye rafe. 275

(65)

Qaurtus apostolus. ffor we say that we haue sene / thou hold*ys* vs wars then woode;
Ihesu lyfyng stod vs betwene / oure lord that witꝫ vs yode.
Thomas. I say ye wote neuer what ye mene / a goost before you stode; 278 ye wenyd that it had bene / the cors that died on roode.

Quintus apostolus. The cors that dyed on tre / was berid in a stone,[1] — They tell him of the empty grave.
The thurgꝫ beside fande we / and in that graue cors was none;
his sudary ther myght we se / and he thens whik was gone.
Thomas. Noght, bot stolne is he / witꝫ Iues that hym haue slone. 283

Sextus apostolus. Cert*ys*, thomas, thou sais not right / thay wold' hym not stele, — The Jews would not have stolen the body, for they guarded the tomb.
ffor thay gart kepe hym day and nyght / witꝫ knyght*ys* that they held lele; 285
he rose has we haue sene in sight / fro aꝧ the Iues fele.
Thomas. I lefe not bot if I myght / myself witꝫ hym dele.

septimus apostolus. He told vs tythyng*ys*, thomas / yit mynnys me, — [Fol. 116, a. Sig. R. 4.]
That as Ionas thre dayes was / In a fysꝫ in the see, — Christ had prophesied His rising, using Jonah as a type.
so shuld he be, and bene has / in ertꝫ by dayes thre, pas fro ded, ryse, and rase / as he saide done has he. 291

(69)

Thomas asks who could raise Christ from the dead.

Thomas. Cert*ys*, that worde I harde hym say / and so harde ye hym a�attached,
Bot for nothyng trow I may / that it so shuld befaꝫ,
That he shuld ryse the thrid day / that dranke aseꝫ and gaꝫ:
sen he was god and ded lay / from ded who myght hym caꝫ?

(70)

The Father that sent Him raised Him.

*Octau*us *apostol*us. The fader that hym sent / rasid hym that was ded, he comforthꝫ vs in mowrnyng lent / and counseld vs in red;
he bad vs trow withꝫ good intent / his rysyng in euery sted;
Thyne absens gars thi sauꝫ be shent / and mak*ys* the heuy as led.

(71)

But Thomas still disbelieves a bodily rising.

Thomas. Thou says sothꝫ, harde and heuy / am I to traw that ye me say;
Mi hardnes I trow skilfully / for he told vs thus ay,
That his fader was euer hym by / for aꝫ bot oon were thay;
That he rose bodely / for nothyng trow I may.

(72)

*Noue*nus *apostol*us. May thou not trow withoutten mo / for sothe, that it was he?
Thomas wherto shuld we say so? / then wenys thou fals we be.
Thomas. I wote youre hartes was fuꝫ wo / and fownd withꝫ vanyte;
If ye swere aꝫ and ye were mo / I trow it not or that I se.

(73)

*Decim*us *apostol*us. Thomas, of errowre thou blyn / and tiꝫ vs turne thi mode; Trow his rysyng by dayes threyn / sen he died on the rode.

Nothing will convince him but to feel Christ's wounds.

Thomas. Noght bot I myght my fyng*er* wyn / in sted as nayle stode,
And his syde my hande put in / ther he shed his hart bloode.

(75)

Thomas. Mercy, ihesu, rew on me / my hande is blody of thi blode! — Thomas cries for mercy.
Mercy, ihesu, for I se / thi myght that I not vnderstode!
Mercy, ihesu, I pray the / that for aH synfuH died on roode!
Mercy, ihesu, of mercy fre / for thi goodnes that is so goode! 319

(76)

kest away my staf wiH I / and witH no wepyn gang; [Fol. 116, b.]
Mercy wiH I caH and cry / ihesu that on roode hang; — He flings away his staff, Rew on me, kyng of mercy / let me not cry thus lang!
Mercy, for the velany / thou tholyd on Iues witH wrang.

(77)

Mi hat wiH I kest away / my mantiH sone onone, — hat, and mantle, vnto the poore help it may / for richere knawe I none.
Mercy wiH I abyde, and pray / to the iHesu, alone;
My synfuH dede I rew ay / to the make I my mone. 327

(78)

Mercy, ihesu, lorde swete / for thi fyfe woundys so sare,[1]
Thou suffred thrugH handys and feete / thi semely side a spere it share;
Mercy, ihesu, lord, yit / for thi moder that the bare! 330
Mercy, for the teres thou grett / when thou rasid lazare!

(79)

Mi gyrdiH gay and purs of sylk / and cote away thou shaH; — gay girdle, silk purse, and coat, that he may sooner come to Christ's mercy.
whils I am werere of swylke / the longere mercy may I caH.
Ihesu, that soke the madyns mylk / ware noght bot clothes of paH,

Jesus foretells the general resurrection,

Ihesus. None myght bryng the in that wytt / for oght that thay myght say,
To trow that I myght flytt / fro ded to lyfe to wyn away;
My sauȝ and my cors haue knytt / a knott that last shaȝ ay; 342
Thus shaȝ I rase, weȝ thou wytt / ilk man on domesday.

when the faithless shall be damned, and the faithful and almsgivers have heaven as their reward.

Who so hath not trowid right / to heȝ I shaȝ theym lede,

We wenyd that thou ther shuld haue bene slayn ;
Wiħ thou now go thid*er* agane ?

Jesus tells them Lazarus is fallen asleep ; they must go to make that knight awake.

*Ih*esus. herkyn, breder, and takys kepe ;
lazare oure freynde is fallyn on slepe ;
The way tiħ hym now wiħ we take,
To styr that knyght and gar hym wake.

If he sleep he will mend, Peter thinks.

petrus. Sir, me thynke it were the best To let hym slepe and take his rest ;
And kepe that no man com hym hend,
ffor if he slepe then mon he mend.

*Ih*esus. I say to you, With outten fayħ,
No kepyng may tiħ hym avaiħ,
[Fol. 129, b.] Ne slepe may stand hym in no stede,

Jesus tells them plainly Lazarus is dead.

I say you sekerly he is dede ;
Therfor I say you now at last leyfe this speche and go we fast.

Thomas says the disciples will share Jesus' peril and go with Him.

Thomas. Sir, What so euer ye bid vs do
We assent vs weħ ther to ;
I hope to god ye shaħ not fynde
None of vs shaħ lefe behynde ;
ffor any pareħ that may befaħ
Weynde we Wiħ oure master aħ.

Martha tells Jesus Lazarus is dead.

Martha. help me, lorde, and gif me red !
lazare my broder now is dede,
That was to the both lefe and dere ;
he had not dyed had thou bene here.

He shall rise and live again, Jesus says.

*Ih*esus. Martha, martha, thou may be fayn, Thi brothere shaħ rise and lif agayn.

Martha. lorde, I wote that he shaħ ryse
And com before the good iustyce ;

Yes, at Doomsday, Martha answers.

ffor at the dredfuħ day of dome
There mon ye kepe hym at his come,
To loke What dome ye Wiħ hym gif ;
Then mon he rise, then mon he lyf.

Jesus says, "I am the Resurrection and the Life."

*Ih*esus. I Warne you, both man and wyfe,
That I am rysyng, and I am life ;
And Whoso truly trowys in me,
That I was euer and ay shaħ be,
Oone thyng I shaħ hym gif,
Though he be dede yit shaħ he lif.

Martha. yee, for sothe, my lorde of blys, Ellys were I greatly to mysprase, ffor aH is sothe-fast that thou says.
*Ih*esus. Go teH thi sister mawdlayn
That I com, ye may be fayn. [Martha goes to Mary.] Martha. Sister, lefe this sorowful bande, Oure lorde com̃ys here at hand,
And his apostyls with hym also.
Maria. A, for god*ys* luf let me go!
Blissid be he that sende me grace,
That I may se the in this place.
lorde, mekiH sorow may men se
Of my sister here and me;
We ar heuy as any lede,
ffor our broder that thus is dede.
had thou bene here and on hym senc,
dede for sothe had he not bene.
*Ih*esus. hider to you com̃en we ar
To make you comforth of youre care,
Bot loke no fayntyse ne no slawth̃
Bryng you oute of stedfast trawthe,
Then shaH I hold you that I saide.

Maria. lorde, if it be thi WiH,
I hope be this he sauers iH, ffor it is now the ferth[1] day gone
sen he Was laide vnder yonde stone.
*Ih*esus. I told the right now ther thou stode that thi trawth shuld ay be goode,
And if thou may that fulfiH
AH bees done right at thi wiH.

Martha believes,

and is bidden to fetch her sister Magdalene.

[Fol. 130, a.]

Mary tells Jesus of their sorrow.

Jesus is come to comfort them.

He asks where the body is laid.

Et lacrimatus est ihesus, dicens.

May 1897. For this year the Original-Series Texts were issued in 1894, and those for 1898 in 1896. The Extra-Series Texts for 1896 and 1897 will soon be ready. The texts of several works are now printed. Members are askt to send their two- or three-years' subscriptions for both Series at once in advance.

The Original-Series Texts for 1896 are both dialectal: No. 106, Richard Misyn's—he was Prior of Lincoln—englishings in 1434 and 1435 of Richard Rolle of Hampole's Fire of Love and Mending of Life, edited by the Rev. Rt. Harvey, M.A., Headmaster of the Cork Grammar School;—this Text, tho not in a pure dialect, is interesting for forms like sarif, for serve, &c.[1];—and No. 107, The English Conquest of Ireland, 1166-85, two parallel-texts of about 1425 and 1440, of which the earlier has now and then dyng, tynge, for thing, &c., edited by Dr. Furnivall.

The Extra-Series Texts for 1896 are from casts of books first issued by other bodies,—LXIX, Lydgate's Assembly of Gods, edited by Dr. Oscar L. Triggs for the University of Chicago; and LXX, The Digby Plays, edited by Dr. Furnivall for the New Shakspere Society. As both these works form necessary parts of the E. E. T. Soc.'s Lydgate and Old-Play Series, and the Society was allowed to have casts of them for the cost of the plates, it took advantage of the opportunity to save money for other MS. texts.

For 1897, the Original-Series Texts are, No. 108, Child-Marriages and -Divorces, Trothplights, Adulteries, Affiliations, Libels, Wills, Miscellanea, Clandestine Marriages, Depositions in Trials in the Bishop's Court, Chester, A.D. 1561-6, with Entries from the Chester Mayors' Books, 1558-1600, ed. Dr. F. J. Furnivall,—a most curious volume, full of the social life of its time;—and Part II of the Pryner or Lay-Folks' Prayer-book, edited by Mr. Henry Littlehales, with a Paper by Mr. Bishop on the Origin and Growth of the Prymer.

For 1897, the Extra-Series Texts are LXXI, The Towneley Plays, re-edited from the unique MS. by Mr. George England, with sidenotes and Introduction by Alfred W. Pollard, M.A.; and LXXII, Hoccleve's Regement of Princes, A.D. 1411-12, re-edited from the MSS. by Dr. Furnivall. The latter forms Part III of Hoccleve's Works. Part II will be Hoccleve's Minor Poems II, from the Ashburnham MS., edited by Mr. Israel Gollancz, M.A.; and if it is ready in 1897, it will be issued as LXXIII for that year.

The Original-Series Texts for 1898 are Nos. 110, 111,—Part II, Sections 1 and 2, of Dr. T. Miller's Collations of Four MSS. of the Old-English Version of Bede's Ecclesiastical History.

The Extra-Series Texts for 1898 will doubtless be the Second Part of the prose Romance of Melusine—Introduction, with ten facsimiles of the best woodblocks of the old foreign black-letter editions, Glossary, &c., by A. K. Donald, B.A.; and a new edition of the famous Early-English Dictionary (English and Latin), Promptorium Parvulorum, from the Winchester MS., ab. 1440 A.D.: in this, the Editor, the Rev. A. L. Mayhew, M.A., will follow and print his MS. not only in its arrangement of nouns first, and verbs second, under every letter of the Alphabet, but also in its giving of the flexions of the words. The Society's edition will thus be the first modern one that really represents its original, a point on which Mr. Mayhew's insistance will meet with the sympathy of all our Members.

The Original-Series Texts for 1899 will be No. 112, Queen Elizabeth's Englishings of Boethius de Consolatione, Plutarch's De Curiositate, and part of Horace, De Arte Poetica, edited from the unique MS. (a portion in the Queen's own hand) in the Public Record Office, London, by the late Miss C. Pemberton, with a Facsimile, and a note on the Queen's use of i for long e; and No. 113, Jacob's Well, a quaint allegorical treatise on the cleansing and building-up of Man's Conscience, edited from the unique MS. in Salisbury Cathedral, by Dr. J. W. Brandeis.

The Extra-Series Texts for 1899 will probably be Miss Morrill's edition of the Speculum Guidonis in the Society's Guy-of-Warwick Series; Mr. I. Gollancz's re-edition of two Alliterative Poems, Winner and Waster, &c., ab. 1360, just issued for the Roxburghe Club; Dr. Norman Moore's re-edition of The Book of the Foundation of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, from the unique MS. ab. 1425, which gives an account of the Founder, Rahere, and the miraculous cures wrought at the Hospital; or The Craft of Nombrynge, with other of the earliest englisht Treatises on Arithmetic, edited by R. Steele, B.A., or Alexander Scott's Poems, 1568, from the unique Edinburgh MS., ed. A. K. Donald, B.A.

An urgent appeal is hereby made to Members to increase the list of Subscribers to the E. E. Text Society. It is nothing less than a scandal that the Hellenic Society should have nearly 1000 members, while the Early English Text Society has only about 300!

The Original-Series Texts for 1900 and 1901 will be chosen from books already at press: Part IV (the last) of Prof. Skeat's edition of Aelfric's Metrical Lives of Saints; Part II of the Minor Poems of the Vernon MS., edited by Dr. F. J. Furnivall; Mr. Gollancz's re-edited Exeter-Book—Anglo-Saxon Poems from the unique MS. in Exeter Cathedral—Part II; Dr. Bruce's Introduction to The English Conquest of Ireland, Part II; Dr. Furnivall's edition of the Lichfield Gilds, which is all printed, and waits only for the Introduction, that Prof. E. C. K. Gonner has kindly undertaken to write for the book. Prof. Mead has sent to press the completion of the prose Merlin, for which the Society has been looking in vain from its Treasurer since 1870. Miss Mary Bateson has at press George Ashby's Active Policy of a Prince, &c., from the unique MS., A.D. 1463. Dr. G. Herzfeld's re-edition of the Anglo-Saxon Martyrology is all in type. Part II of Dr. Holthausen's Vices and Virtues needs only its Glossary.

The Texts for the Extra Series in 1899 and 1900 will be chosen from The Three Kings' Sons, Part II, the Introduction &c. by Dr. Leon Kellner; Part II of The Chester Plays, re-edited from the MSS., with a full collation of the formerly missing Devonshire MS., by Mr. G. England and Dr. Matthews; the Parallel-Text of the only two MSS. of the Owl and Nightingale, edited by Mr. G. F. H. Sykes (at press); Robert of Brunne's Handlyng Synne, edited by Dr. Furnivall; Deguilleville's Pilgrimage of the Life of Man, three prose versions —two English, one French—edited by G. N. Currie, M.A. Mr. Steele has also in type, besides the earliest Treatise on Arithmetic, englisht from Johannes de Sacro Bosco, two prose englishings of the Secreta Secretorum from MSS. at Lambeth, the second of which is very rich in new words. A version by James Yonge in 1428, made for the Earl of Ormonde, has been copied from its Rawlinson MS. at Oxford, and collated with the later Lambeth MS. All three versions differ widely. Some of these Texts will be ready in 1897. Members are therefore askt to send Advance Subscriptions for 1898, 1899 and 1900, in order that the 1898-1900 books may be issued to them as soon as the editions are finisht. The Society's experience has shown that Editors must be taken when they are in the humour for work. All real Students and furtherers of the Society's purpose will be ready to push-on the issue of Texts. Those Members who care only a guinea a year (or can afford only that sum) for the history of our language and our nation's thought, will not be hurt by those who care more, getting their books in advance; on the contrary, they will be benefited, as each successive year's work will then be ready for issue on New Year's Day. Members are askt to realise the fact that the Society has now 50 years' work on its Lists,—at its present rate of production,—and that there is from 100 to 200 more years' work to come after that. The year 2000 will not see finisht all the Texts that the Society ought to print.

Mr. G. N. Currie is preparing an edition of the 15th and 16th century Prose Versions of Guillaume de Deguilleville's Pilgrimage of the Life of Man, with the French prose version by Jean Gallopes, from Mr. Henry Hucks Gibbs's MS., Mr. Gibbs having generously promist to pay the extra cost of printing the French text, and engraving one or two of the illuminations in his MS.

Guillaume de Deguilleville, monk of the Cistercian abbey of Chaalis, in the diocese of Senlis, wrote his first verse Pelerinaige de l'Homme in 1330-1 when he was 36.[1] Twenty-five (or six) years after, in 1355, he revised his poem, and issued a second version of it, and this is the only one that has been printed. Of the prose representative of the first version, 1330-1, a prose Englishing, about 1430 A.D., was edited by Mr. Aldis Wright for the Roxburghe Club in 1869, from MS. Ff. 5. 30 in the Cambridge University Library. Other copies of this prose English are in the Hunterian Museum, Glasgow, Q. 2. 25; Univ. Coll. and Corpus Christi, Oxford[2]; and the Laud Collection in the Bodleian, no. 740. A copy in the Northern dialect is MS. G. 21, in St. John's Coll., Cambridge, and this is the MS. which will be edited by Mr. Sidney J. Herrtage for the E. E. Text Society. The Laud MS. 740 was somewhat condenst and modernised, in the 17th century, into MS. Ff. 6. 30, in the Cambridge University Library:[3] "The Pilgrime or the Pilgrimage of Man in this World," copied by Will. Baspoole, whose copy "was verbatim written by Walter Parker, 1645, and from thence transcribed by G. G. 1649; and from thence by W. A. 1655." This last copy may have been read by, or its story reported to, Bunyan, and may have been the groundwork of his Pilgrim's Progress. It will be edited by Mr. Currie for the E. E. T. Soc., its text running under the earlier English, as in Mr. Herrtage's edition of the Gesta Romanorum for the Society. In February 1464,[4] Jean Gallopes—a clerk of Angers, afterwards chaplain to John, Duke of Bedford, Regent of France—turned Deguilleville's first verse Pelerinaige into a prose Pèlerinage de la vie humaine.[5] By the kindness of Mr. Hy. Hucks Gibbs, as above mentiond, Gallopes's French text will be printed opposite the early prose northern Englishing in the Society's edition.

[1] He was born about 1295. See Abbé GOUJET'S Bibliothèque française, Vol. IX, p. 73-4.—P. M.
[2] These 3 MSS. have not yet been collated, but are believed to be all of the same version.
[3] Another MS. is in the Pepys Library.
[4] According to Mr. Hy. Hucks Gibbs's MS.
[5] These were printed in France, late in the 15th or early in the 16th century.

The Second Version of Deguilleville's Pelerinaige de l'Homme, A.D. 1355 or -6, was englisht in verse by Lydgate in 1426. Of Lydgate's poem, the larger part is in the Cotton MS. Vitellius C. xiii (leaves 2-308). This MS. leaves out Chaucer's englishing of Deguilleville's A B C or Prayer to the Virgin, of which the successive stanzas start with A, B, C, and run all thro' the alphabet; and it has 2 gaps, of which most of the second can be fild up from the end of the other imperfect MS. Cotton, Tiberius A vii. The rest of the stopgaps must be got from the original French in Harleian 4399,[1] and Additional 22,937[2] and 25,594[3] in the British Museum. Lydgate's version will be edited in due course for the Society.

Besides his first Pelerinaige de l'homme in its two versions, Deguilleville wrote a second, "de l'ame separee du corps," and a third, "de nostre seigneur Iesus." Of the second, a prose Englishing of 1413, The Pilgrimage of the Sowle (perhaps in part by Lydgate), exists in the Egerton MS. 615,[4] at Hatfield, Cambridge (Univ. Kk. 1. 7, Caius), Oxford (Univ. Coll. and Corpus), and in Caxton's edition of 1483. This version has 'somewhat of addicions' as Caxton says, and some shortenings too, as the maker of both, the first translator, tells us in the MSS. Caxton leaves out the earlier englisher's interesting Epilog in the Egerton MS. This prose englishing of the Sowle will be edited for the Society after that of the Man is finisht, and will have Gallopes's French opposite it, from Mr. Gibbs's MS., as his gift to the Society. Of the Pilgrimage of Jesus, no englishing is known.

As to the MS. Anglo-Saxon Psalters, Dr. Hy. Sweet has edited the oldest MS., the Vespasian, in his Oldest English Texts for the Society, and Mr. Harsley has edited the latest, c. 1150, Eadwine's Canterbury Psalter. The other MSS., except the Paris one, being interlinear versions,—some of the Roman-Latin redaction, and some of the Gallican,—Prof. Logeman has prepared for press, a Parallel-Text edition of the first twelve Psalms, to start the complete work. He will do his best to get the Paris Psalter—tho' it is not an interlinear one—into this collective edition; but the additional matter, especially in the Verse-Psalms, is very difficult to manage. If the Paris text cannot be parallelised, it will form a separate volume. The Early English Psalters are all independent versions, and will follow separately in due course.

Through the good offices of the Examiners, some of the books for the Early-English Examinations of the University of London will be chosen from the Society's publications, the Committee having undertaken to supply such books to students at a large reduction in price. The profits from these sales, after the payment of costs arising out of the issuing of such Texts to Students, will be applied to the Society's Reprints. Five of its 1866 Texts, and one of its 1867 (now at press), still need reproducing. Donations for this purpose will be welcome. They should be paid to the Hon. Sec., Mr. W. A. Dalziel, 67 Victoria Rd., Finsbury Park, London, N.

Members are reminded that fresh Subscribers are always wanted, and that the Committee can at any time, on short notice, send to press an additional Thousand Pounds' worth of work.

The Subscribers to the Original Series must be prepared for the issue of the whole of the Early English Lives of Saints, sooner or later. The Society cannot leave out any of them, even though some are dull. The Sinners would doubtless be much more interesting. But in many Saints' Lives will be found valuable incidental details of our forefathers' social state, and all are worthful for the history of our language. The Lives may be lookt on as the religious romances or story-books of their period.

The Standard Collection of Saints' Lives in the Corpus and Ashmole MSS., the Harleian MS. 2277, &c. will repeat the Laud set, our No. 87, with additions, and in right order. (The foundation MS. (Laud 108) had to be printed first, to prevent quite unwieldy collations.) The Supplementary Lives from the Vernon and other MSS. will form one or two separate volumes.

Besides the Saints' Lives, Trevisa's englishing of Bartholomæus de Proprietatibus Rerum, the mediæval Cyclopædia of Science, &c., will be the Society's next big undertaking. Dr. R. von Fleischhacker will edit it. Prof. Napier of Oxford, wishing to have the whole of our MS. Anglo-Saxon in type, and accessible to students, will edit for the Society all the unprinted and other Anglo-Saxon Homilies which are not included in Thorpe's edition of Ælfric's prose,[5] Dr. Morris's of the Blickling Homilies, and Prof. Skeat's of Ælfric's Metrical Homilies. Prof. Kölbing has also undertaken for the Society's Extra Series a Parallel-Text of all the six MSS. of the Ancren Riwle, one of the most important foundation-documents of 1 15th cent., containing only the Vie humaine.

2 15th cent., containing all the 3 Pilgrimages, the 3rd being Jesus Christ's.
3 14th cent., containing the Vie humaine and the 2nd Pilgrimage, de l'Ame: both incomplete.
4 Ab. 1430, 106 leaves (leaf 1 of text wanting), with illuminations of nice little devils—red, green, tawny &c.—and damnd souls, fires, angels &c.
5 Of these, Mr. Harsley is preparing a new edition, with collations of all the MSS. Many copies of Thorpe's book, not issued by the Ælfric Society, are still in stock.
Of the Vercell Homilies, the Society has bought the copy made by Prof. G. Lattanzi.

Early English. Mr. Harvey, too, means to prepare an edition of the three MSS. of the Earliest English Metrical Psalter, one of which was edited by the late Mr. Stevenson for the Surtees Society.

In case more Texts are ready at any time than can be paid for by the current year's income, they will be dated the next year, and issued in advance to such Members as will pay advance subscriptions. The 1886-7 delay in getting out Texts must not occur again, if it can possibly be avoided. The Director has in hand for future volunteer Editors, copies of 2 or 3 MSS.

Members of the Society will learn with pleasure that its example has been followed, not only by the Old French Text Society which has done such admirable work under its founders Profs. Paul Meyer and Gaston Paris, but also by the Early Russian Text Society, which was set on foot in 1877, and has since issued many excellent editions of old MS. Chronicles &c.

Members will also note with pleasure the annexation of large tracts of our Early English territory by the important German contingent under General Zupitza, Colonel Kölbing, volunteers Hausknecht, Einenkel, Haenisch, Kaluza, Hupe, Adam, Holthausen, Schick, Herzfeld, Brandeis, &c. Scandinavia has also sent us Prof. Erdmann; Holland, Prof. H. Logeman, who is now working in Belgium; France, Prof. Paul Meyer—with Gaston Paris as adviser; —Italy, Prof. Lattanzi; Hungary, Dr. von Fleischhacker; while America is represented by Prof. Child, Dr. Mary Noyes Colvin, Profs. Mead, Perrin, McClintock, Triggs, &c. The sympathy, the ready help, which the Society's work has cald forth from the Continent and the United States, have been among the pleasantest experiences of the Society's life, a real aid and cheer amid all troubles and discouragements. All our Members are grateful for it, and recognise that the bond their work has woven between them and the lovers of language and antiquity across the seas is one of the most welcome results of the Society's efforts.

ORIGINAL SERIES.

Half the Publications for 1866 (13, 14, 15, 18, 22) are out of print, but will be gradually reprinted. Subscribers who desire the issue for 1866 should send their guineas at once to the Hon. Secretary, in order that other Texts for 1866 may be sent to press.

The Society is anxious to hear of more early Dialect MSS. John Lacy's copy, in the Newcastle-on-Tyne dialect, 1434, of some theological tracts in MS. 94 of St. John's College, Oxford, is to be edited by Prof. McClintock. More Hampoles in the Yorkshire dialect will follow. The Lincoln and Norfolk Wills, already copied by or for Dr. Furnivall, unluckily show but little traces of dialect.

More members (to bring money) and Editors (to bring brains) are wanted by the Society.

Early English Text Society.

THE Early English Text Society was started by Dr. Furnivall in 1864 for the purpose of bringing the mass of Old English Literature within the reach of the ordinary student, and of wiping away the reproach under which England had long rested, of having felt little interest in the monuments of her early life and language.

The E. E. T. Soc. desires to print in its Original Series the whole of our unprinted MS. literature; and in its Extra Series to reprint in careful editions all that is most valuable of printed MSS. and early printed books. It greatly needs more support.

The Society has issued to its subscribers 182 Texts, most of them of great interest; so much so indeed that the publications of its first two years have been reprinted, and some of those for its third year, 1866; the rest will follow.

The Subscription to the Early English Text Society, which constitutes Membership, is £1 1*s.* a year [and £1 1*s.* additional for the Extra Series], due in advance on the 1st of January, and should be paid either to the Society's Account at the Head Office of the Union Bank, Princes St., London, E.C., or by Money Order or Postal Orders, or by Cheque, crost 'Union Bank', to the Hon. Secretary, WM. A. DALZIEL, Esq., 67, Victoria Road, Finsbury Park, London, N. All Members who subscribe through other channels than the Hon. Sec. are askt to send their names to him, in order to insure an insertion of them in the List of Members.

Those Members in the United States of America who want their Texts posted to them, must add to their prepaid subscriptions 1*s.* yearly for the Original Series, and 1*s.* for the Extra Series.
